LEG-THEORY CONTROVERSY DECISION TO-DAY

CABINET OF THE LEFT

FRENCH GOVERNMENT OFFER

M. DALADIER AS NEW PREMIER

Paris, Jan. 29.
President Lebrun has invited M. Edouard Daladier, Minister of War in the defeated Paul-Boncour Government, to form a Cabinet with himself as Premier, and M. Daladier has accepted the task.

It was first reported that M. Daladier had reserved his reply, which is customary in the circumstances, but it was later learned that, on the contrary, the Radical leader had definitely accepted the Premiership before leaving President Lebrun.

DETERMINATION AND ENERGY.
In a brief interview outside the Elysee, he declared: "I am quite aware of the difficulties of the moment, but I think the solution is only a question of determination and energy."

The prospective Premier is only 48 years of age and this will be his first attempt at forming a Government though he has been a Cabinet Minister since 1924, after five years as a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

LEFT WING LEADER.

He leads the Left Wing of the Radical Socialists, having caused a split between his group and the Right Wing which supported the Poincaré Government. He has been successively Colonial Minister, Minister of War, Minister of Education, Minister of Public Works and Minister for War in various governments.

He is a great friend of M. Caillaux and there is a distinct possibility of the return of the famous politico-financial expert to the Finance Ministry if M. Daladier succeeds in forming a Cabinet.

HERRIOT'S SUPPORT.

He told pressmen that he hopes to complete the formation of a Cabinet of Republic Action by this evening. M. Herriot and M. Paul Boncour have promised him their full support.—Reuter.

RAILWAY STRIKE IN N. IRELAND

MEN "DOWNING TOOLS" AT MIDNIGHT

Belfast, Jan. 29.
A mass meeting of all grades of railway workers in Northern Ireland was held in Belfast to-day to discuss the proposed wages cuts.

The meeting decided to strike at midnight on January 30 as a protest against the wages reduction.

The strike, which has been threatening for some time, will affect five thousand railway employees and bring the whole of the Great Northern system to a standstill.—Reuter.

UNITED STATES AND SOVIET

LABOURITES AGAINST RECOGNITION

Washington, Jan. 29.
The American Federation of Labour has issued a statement declaring itself to be against American recognition of the Soviet Government.

Interest in America's relations with Moscow has been aroused of late by suggestions that President-Elect Roosevelt may introduce a change of policy when he takes office.—Reuter.

George Bernard Shaw, with his wife, starting out on his world tour. He is here seen leaving his London residence, bound for the Empress of Britain, aboard which Mr. and Mrs. Shaw are making their trip. They are due in Hongkong on Saturday, February 11th.

JUBILEE ROAD MURDER

CRIMINAL SESSIONS TRIAL OPENS

SINGLET CLUE

An allegation that three men were concerned in the murder of Lam Kam-chuen, at Victoria Road on September 27th last, was made by the Crown when the trial opened at the Criminal Sessions this morning, before Mr. Justice Wood and a jury, of Chan Kau, alias Chan Sam, who appeared on the capital charge.

In a previous trial, the murdered man's foster-father was acquitted on a charge of procuring the murder.

At to-day's trial, Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, with Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown, while Mr. R. C. H. Lim (instructed by Mr. F. X. d'Almada, sr.) represented the prisoner.

The jury was composed of the following:—Messrs. T. R. Parsons (foreman), F. P. Ribeiro, J. Finnie, A. J. Palmer, G. von Ehren, G. R. Payne and E. C. Fincher.

CASE FOR CROWN.

Opening the case for the Crown, Mr. Fraser said that Lam Kam-chuen, the murdered man, was the son or adopted son of Lam Kam-shuk who came to Hongkong from Tong Hang village, in the Sun Wai district, some years ago, and now occupies a position in an Imports and Exports shop in Connaught Road Central. He was also interested in the business known as the Man Hing Cheung tailors' shop, of Queen's Road Central. The deceased young man was about 27 years of age and lived with his father who had supported him for the past seventeen years. The man lived in the Man Hing Cheung shop, but he acquired bad habits, got into bad company, was an opium smoker and a gambler.

The relations between the father and son were apparently fairly normal, but on Confucius' Birthday last year, September 27, the body of Lam Kam-chuen was found in Victoria Road, otherwise known as Jubilee Road.

EUROPEAN'S DISCOVERY.

A lamp-lighter, walking from Aberdeen about midnight, saw the body but said nothing about it. At 6.45 on the morning of the 28th, a European gentleman, motoring along the road, also saw the body and made a report to the police.

The victim was found to have been stabbed. There were bruises on the head and fissures in the skull compatible with the use of a large stone. A rope, used as a gag, was tied over the mouth.

The British Minister expects to remain in Nanking for several days at least, exchanging opinions with Mr. Lo Wen-kun, Foreign Minister, and other officials.—Reuter.

BIG TOKYO BUDGET DEFICIT

BOND ISSUE PLAN ATTACKED

DIET BATTLE IN MAKING.

Tokyo, Jan. 29.
With the Diet starting its deliberation on the budget estimates for the coming fiscal year, conflicting opinions are being expressed regarding the wisdom of filling up the huge deficit of over ¥900,000,000 between revenue and expenditure by means of bond issues.

It is, in fact, the question of how this deficit ought to be met, rather than the record-breaking size of the deficit, which is the centre of controversy. The swelling of the budget figures is almost wholly due to the heavy military expenses, necessitated by the operations in "Manchukuo," and to the emergency relief measures for helping the poverty-stricken agrarian communities.

"UNAVOIDABLE."

Little criticism is therefore likely to be made against either of these two large items, as, under existing circumstances, the feeling amongst the people as a whole is that they are unavoidable. It is round the question of the deficit that the main battle is likely to be fought, and although there seems little likelihood at the moment that the Government will budge from its belief in the advisability of covering it solely and entirely by bond issues, it is noteworthy that the Japan Economic League is

SECRET SYDNEY MEETING

BOARD OF CONTROL IN SESSION

HAPPY FACES AT BEGINNING

Sydney, Jan. 30.

The Australian Cricket Board of Control met at half past ten this morning to discuss the reply of the M.C.C. to their "body-line" bowling protest, which has given rise to the bitterest controversy in the history of Test cricket.

The M.C.C. in a carefully worded and dignified reply to Australia's protest, objected to the suggestion that the M.C.C. side were employing "unsportsmanlike" tactics and indicated their readiness, if the Australians thought it desirable, to cancel the remainder of the tour.

No linking has been given of the reactions of the Board of Control to this rather curt reply, but as most of the delegates arrived with laughing faces, it is suggested that there may be a happy solution of the problem.

The discussions are being held in the greatest secrecy behind closed doors but it is anticipated that a statement will be issued when the Board has concluded its deliberations on the vexed question.—Reuter.

SEVERE QUAKE IN KANSU

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND DAMAGE

Despatches from Chinese sources in Kansu tell of considerable damage done by the recent earthquake in that province. The shocks were very severe at Chiehuan, Yumen, Tinghsin and Kaotai in north Kansu, causing considerable loss of life and much damage. Many houses collapsed completely.

General Ma Chung-yin, the local military commander, has sent envoys to investigate the extent of the damage and to devise ways and means of helping the stricken inhabitants of those towns. The loss in north Kansu is estimated roughly at ten million dollars.

CAR CRASHES INTO WALL

MAN AND WOMAN INJURED

A Chinese man and woman, passengers in a hire car, were injured when the vehicle crashed into a wall near the Talkoo Recreation Club in Shaikwan Road yesterday.

The accident occurred when the car skidded while swerving to avoid a tram. The injured persons were Fung Ming-kwan, 45, a widow, and To Yu-chau, 30, a clerk, both of whom live at 171, Lockhart Road Wanchai. They were taken to the Government Civil Hospital. Their injuries are not considered to be serious.

strongly opposed to this policy and is urging the necessity of taxation reform and administrative readjustment and that loan issues should be replaced by an increase in taxes.

INFLATION FEARS.

The main fear of those who oppose the seemingly reckless resort to the present loan policy is, of course, that serious inflation will be the inevitable result. The Government, however, profess confidence that nothing of the sort will happen, as adequate steps have been taken to prevent it.—Reuter.

KAILU AGAIN BOMBED

JAPANESE TROOPS IN THE BATTLE

ATTACK BEATEN OFF

Peking, Jan. 30.

Japanese military operations in the Kailu area are continuing, according to Chinese reports, which state that the city has again been subjected to a heavy aerial bombardment.

The air force machines engaged in the operations are cooperating with the military, who appear to have the intention of occupying the city.

A fierce attack was launched on the night of January 26, Kailu being heavily bombed from the air, while Japanese and Mongol troops attempted to storm the city.

The attack, it is claimed, was driven off and the city is still in the hands of the Chinese, who report that in the course of the fighting, thirty-seven Japanese and Mongols were killed and several hundred wounded. The Japanese allege that Kailu is being employed as the base for the Volunteers who have been constantly harassing communication on the Tungling Railway, which has been cut at several points recently by Chinese raiding parties.—Reuter.

Mr. J. Owen-Hughes, who was to have left on Home leave on Saturday, has been seriously ill for some days past with influenza. He had a better night last night and is progressing as well as can be expected. His many friends hope that he will soon be restored to his usual good health.

Imposed a fine of $10; on the second $20 with $5 compensation to the ricksha coolie; and on the third $20 with $25 compensation to the Government.

JAPAN AND LEAGUE

MANDATED ISLES STAND

THE SPOILS OF WAR

Tokyo, Jan. 27.

A Government spokesman declared to-night that Japan views the mandated islands, such as the Carolines and the Marshalls as the spoils of war, and intends to uphold this position. This is taken to mean that if Japan withdraws from the League of Nations, she will insist on the retention of these islands.

A Rengo dispatch from Shanghai stated that a three-hour battle was fought early on Friday morning at Chiumenkov between the Japanese garrison there and a body of Chinese.

The Chinese force, believed to belong to the command of Ho Shu-kuo, Chinese commander of the Shanghai district, was said to have attacked the garrison, and after the engagement retreated westward.

CASUALTIES UNKNOWN.

Japanese reinforcements were rushed to the scene, an important pass in the Great Wall, from Suichung, a point on the Peiping-Mukden railway north of Shanghai. No casualties were mentioned in the dispatch.

The Japanese garrison was established at Chiumenkov on January 9 after the occupation of Shanghai, when a cavalry regiment from Chinchow and Japanese infantry from Shanghai effected a junction. Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, it was alleged, had been sending troops into Jehol province through this point.

SAILOR CREATES DISTURBANCE

AMERICAN FINED ON THREE COUNTS

A disturbance created by an American seaman in Kowloon last night was described to Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when C. Nelson, of the U. S. S. Summerville, was charged on counts of being drunk and disorderly, damaging a ricksha and damaging Government property.

It was alleged by Sergeant Smith of the Water Police Station, that defendant was drunk near the Star Ferry Wharf at about 11 o'clock last night. He picked a quarrel with a ricksha coolie and damaged the vehicle to the extent of $5. Both parties were taken to the Water Police Station, and in the charge room, defendant continued to behave in a disorderly manner. He tried to assault Sergeant Smith, who was on charge-room duty, and in doing so broke some brass rails.

Defendant pleaded guilty to the charges.

GERMANY'S PROBLEM

HITLER IN DOUBLE HARNESS

DIFFICULTY OF COALITION

Berlin, Jan. 29.

Hitler and von Papen running in double harness seems to be the solution of the political problem, if Parliamentary government is to be restored, though there are doubts in some quarters whether it is possible for them to team up without friction.

Nevertheless, opinion is growing that Herr Hitler will become the next Chancellor and will form a Cabinet with Herr von Papen

Von Papen and Hitler.

as a powerful Vice-Chancellor, as, in fact, the effective controller of Germany's destinies.

COALITION HOPES.

Hitler's success in the Diet will be dependent upon the support of the German Nationals, the Hugenberg Party, and the toleration of the Centre Party and the Bavarian People's Party.

Such a coalition, it is felt, has the best chance of success and it will also meet the approval of President Hindenburg, who has instructed Herr von Papen to impress upon Hitler that a new refusal to join a coalition would have disastrous consequences.

CENTRE PARTY CONDITION.

At the moment, the Centre Party forms the greatest obstacle to coalition, because their leaders demand guarantees from both Hitler and Hindenburg that the conduct of the government will be kept strictly within the constitution. Dr. Brüning is the most powerful influence in the Centre Party.

The suggested coalition would give the Hitler-von Papen Cabinet a majority of 82 in the Reichstag, with the Centre Party holding the support of power. The Government would be assured of the support of the Nazis, 105 seats, the German Nationalists, 51, and the Bavarian People's Party, 18, giving them 264.

THE OPPOSITION.

The Opposition would be formed by the Socialists, 121, the Communists, 100 and other parties, 27, a vote of 248. The Centre Party hold 70 seats in the Reichstag and as long as they are prepared to support the Government a clear majority is assured. They could not encompass a defeat by abstaining from voting, but a few adverse votes would suffice.

In the circumstances, it is essential that the government should secure some assurance of support from Dr. Brüning, and it is not thought likely that this will be easy to obtain.—Reuter.

WEATHER OUTLOOK

The anticyclone remains stationary over the Lower Yangtze Valley, and continues to decrease in intensity. Fresh to strong monsoon will prevail over the China coast and the Northern China Sea. Local forecast:—N.E. winds, fresh; fair.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

This grey costume of rough, pebbly crepe shows just how elegant burgundy velvet corduroy collar and cuffs may be. A burgundy feather in the back of the little grey hat adds style. The collar is the latest round shape and the cuffs are well-calculated to flatter the hands that wear them.

HAVE A NOVELTY FURNITURE DANCE!

By A Hostess

Hostesses who are giving informal dances are now on the lookout for novelty items to enliven the programme and "mix" the guests. Here are a few suggestions.

A Musical Dance. In which each couple changes partners with the couple nearest each time the music stops. This mixes people together in the same way as a Paul Jones does.

A Spoon Dance. Six men being in the middle of the room holding spoons and breaking in on couples who are dancing. The man thus separated from his partner takes the spoon and "breaks" a different couple.

A Tray Dance. Where one man and his partner have a small tray each and have to hand it on to other couples. This goes on until the music suddenly stops, when the couple holding trays have a short exhibition dance.

A Slipper Dance. Every girl takes off one slipper, which is thrown into the centre of the hall. When the band starts playing each man seizes a slipper and has to find the girl to whom it belongs, with whom he has the dance.

A Card Dance. Two identical packs of cards are arranged so that corresponding cards can be distributed to an equal number of men and girls. For the dance, each man has to find his partner the girl who is holding the card matching his own.

Polishing Cloths

Dissolve ½ cup of shredded soap in a large cupful of hot water.

When cold, stir in ½ teaspoonful of liquid ammonia.

Beat this to a smooth paste, and put into it some pieces of odd flannel or linen, and allow them to absorb as much of it as possible; then squeeze them out and dry

Newmarket Checks the Latest.

A cheerful friendliness enters our rooms with the bold checked tweeds which are the latest dictates of fashion for furniture.

All kinds of fascinating combinations of colours, such as blue, purple and jade; yellow, grey and black; jade and grey or jade and yellow, are being used for upholstering easy chairs, settees, stools, fireside chairs, and the seats of dining chairs. To old furniture and period rooms they give a touch of smartness and modernity without being out of keeping. And they are eminently suitable for the upholstery of chromium-plated, steel-tube or cellulose-lacquered furniture.

Scapties still hold up their heads in horror at the mention of this type of furniture, but it has come to stay, and is certainly labour-saving, comfortable, and cheerful.

Curtains may be of the same materials as the chair coverings, or of lighter fabrics such as striped linen, tweed or checked gingham. Nothing is so homely as this simple material in checks large and small, in colours subdued and gay, and nothing is more easily laundered.

The newest designs in gingham have bright horizontal stripes in varying widths, and sometimes two or more different widths are employed in one scheme.

It would be well to line the tweed curtains in rooms facing south. Both gingham and linen tweeds, too, are stronger and hang better if they have linings.

A quick rub with one of these cloths will make brasses brilliant, and keep spoons and forks in good condition.

TO-DAY'S RECIPES.

Three Simple Soups.

The French are wonderful at devising a soup out of nearly nothing at all. Here are some that sound incredibly simple, and yet are very good.

One. Put some stale bread into salted water, cook it very slowly for a couple of hours, then pass it through a fine sieve. Put it back on the fire, add a good piece of butter, and serve with grated cheese.

Two. Cut up three onions and brown them in butter. Add two pints of boiling water, season with salt and plenty of pepper, and cook for half an hour.

Pass the soup through a sieve, put it back on the fire, throw in some vermicelli, and cook for another ten minutes.

A Cod's Head supplies the third. Fry two chopped onions in butter till they are golden, then add two dessertspoons of flour mixed with a teaspoonful of curry powder, and put in the Cod's Head.

Cover with water, add three tomatoes cut in slices, a bayleaf, two or three sprigs of parsley, and a pinch of thyme, and simmer gently for two or three hours.

Strain finely, season with salt and pepper, and serve with vermicelli or fried croutons.

PRUNE JELLY

Stewed prunes and custard are very often an abomination. Not so Prune Jelly.

Sink the prunes, half a pound of them, and stew them until they are tender with two ounces of castor sugar, a slice of lemon (or two), and enough claret and water in equal parts to cover them. When they are done, strain off the liquor, stone the prunes and pass them through a sieve.

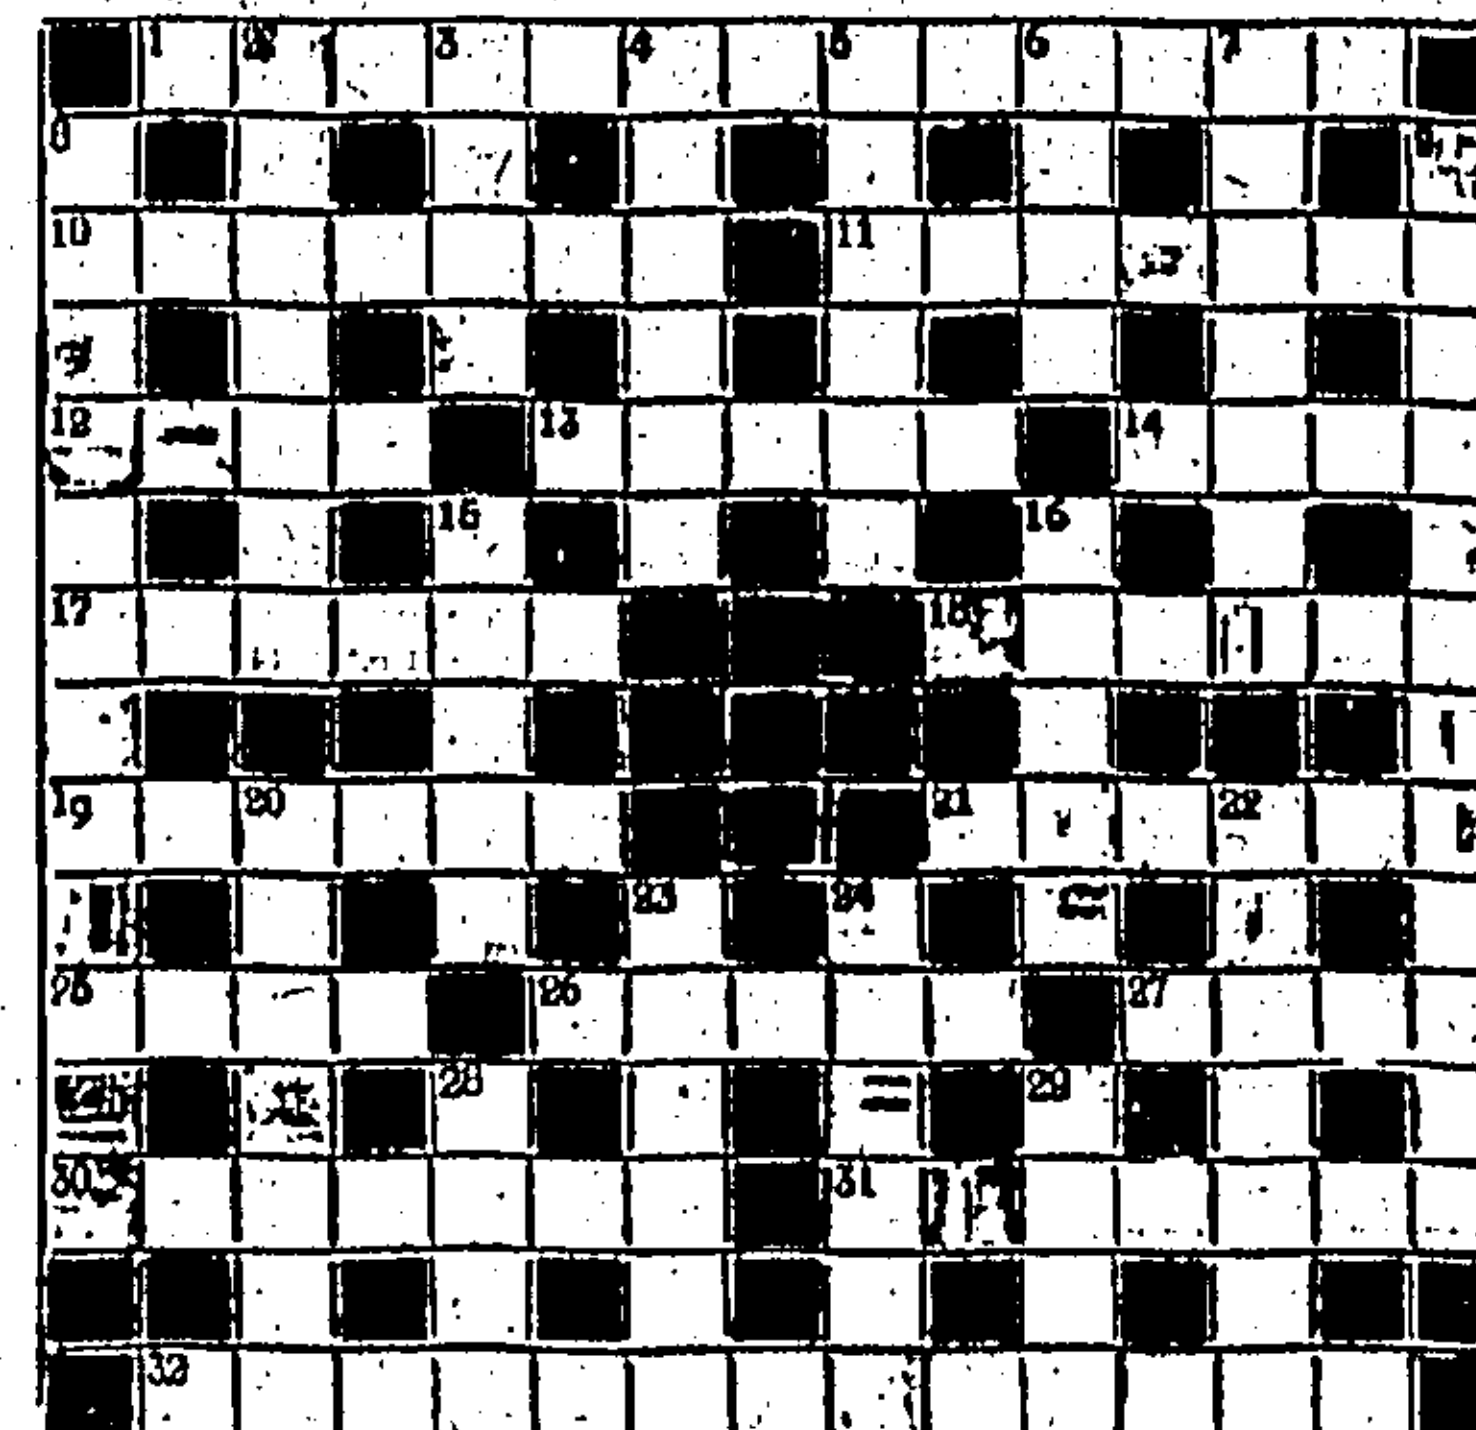

Now dissolve about an ounce of gelatine in the liquid in which the prunes were cooked, mix the prune pulp with it, and add a glass of sherry or better still, a liqueur glassful of cherry brandy. Pour all into a mould, and set on ice or in a cool place.

If you like, you can crack the stones and put the kernels back into the pulp, and you can also decorate the mould with blanched almonds. A very excellent sweet indeed.

This is Schlapparelli's new waistcoat of blistered wool. It is made of two thicknesses of the wool in contrasting colours such as grey and deep red, and is caught at the waist with an elastic belt.

GREAT NEW MYSTERY SERIAL

"WEEK-END MURDER"

BY GABRIEL F. FORBUSH

CHAPTER XXXVI.

They waited until they saw Shaughnessy turn in at the garage door. Then Linda and Tom faced each other. The distant voices of the four around the bridge table rose in quick expert bidding.

"They'll be at it for hours yet!" mused Linda. "Heavens, Tom, but I'm all in! I'll stop and say good-night and then go on up. You'll have to stick to the ship till the better end. If you get a chance to put in a word about staying, it might help. I promise to be up early tomorrow to talk to them all in the morning."

"Now wait a moment," said Tom thoughtfully. "Just what are you proposing to do?"

"I told you—go to bed." He raised eloquent eyebrows. For a moment she did not understand. Then she cast an apprehensive glance upward, as though the one guest who had gone to his room might be within earshot, and sat down suddenly on the little hall bench.

"Tom—you mean Mr. Statlander? He went up an hour ago. Oh, have I got to be afraid of even just going up to my own room?"

"When the next room is occupied by a potential—"

"Don't! Don't say it. I know what you mean! But we can't both go upstairs and leave those people all the rest of the evening. That would be too rude!"

"The rest of the evening! It's after 11 now."

"Well—till their game breaks up. And I am so tired, Tom!"

"Tell you what I'll do," he began judiciously, and stopped as a cool, amused voice broke in.

"What on earth are you two talking about so seriously? Hello, Linda—haven't seen you before. Got a cigarette, Tom?"

The beautiful Fleur, slim and willowy, her hair exquisitely coiffed, her curiously narrow eyes enhanced by soft blue shadows, her eyebrows delicately arched, her rather thin lips rouged into more gracious lines, drifted out into the central hall. As often, Linda immediately felt cramped and hot and awkward.

Her guest, stooping down to adjust a lock of hair by the aid of a long, low mirror over the early empire sofa, had said nothing of the cause for her hostess' excusable absence nor commented on her very apparent fatigue. Annoyance, acting as a tonic stimulant, brought Linda to her feet with a bright smile and her most guileless expression.

"Hello, Florrie! How's the game going?"

By the faint hardening of her features the other showed that the abhorred name had been heard.

"All right. I'm dummy. Mr. DeVos is playing my hand." To Linda's keen ear an unconscious possessive note had slipped into the studiously indifferent voice. Before she could answer Fleur went on with the same negligent air, only a little sharpened to wariness as she watched her hostess in the mirror.

"By the way, Linda, I only wish I had known you were having—these people down."

"But you did, child. You were here to dinner Thursday and I invited you some time ahead."

"Oh, yes—I mean—" It was easy enough to see what she meant but she sought words to express indirectly her annoyance that Linda had given no intimation of the unusual attractiveness of one guest in particular. "I'm sorry I had not happened to meet Mr. DeVos before. I'm taking a crowd out to-morrow to the White Horse Inn."

"Someone backed out?" Linda was all practical interest. Fleur's aims always tempted her to be irritatingly literal.

"Why—yes. I was wondering—I understand your guests had to stay overnight but expect to go to-morrow. The trouble is, our house is full. Mostly mother's and father's friends. Such a bore to have that sort for the Fourth of July, week-end! I do need another man, Linda darling—"

It was a habit of Fleur's when she wanted anything but did not want to be put in the position of asking for it to trail off in an indeterminate sentence, and to wait for the other person to make the actual suggestion. Linda had learned just how long she could leave the unfinished sentence suspended in the air between them, thus filling Fleur with vague alarm lest she might have to further her own scheme openly, or worse yet, see it ignored entirely. This time Linda did not indulge in her favourite bedevilment. Fleur's calculating little manoeuvre too aptly fitted in with her own cherished plan.

"That is a shame! I know he'd love to move right over to that gorgeous place of yours. But, Fleur, don't worry. We'd be delighted to have him stay here. After all, it seems senseless for him to go back to town Sunday when he would enjoy another day outdoors and have one of your exciting parties for the grand climax. Because I'm—out of things" (she had an impulse to add politely "Perhaps you heard of the death of my cousin?" but restrained it) "doesn't mean Mr. DeVos can't simply stay at the house and do as he pleases on his own."

The slight cloud on Fleur's unlined forehead cleared. Instantly away. Her desires usually arranged themselves thus expeditiously.

"That's too nice of you, Linda! Sure it won't be any trouble? They must be waiting for me," she went on hastily, perhaps fearing lest her question be taken literally.

"I must go back. He plays a marvelous game of contract, Linda. Too bad you can't take a hand for a while. Mr. Pratt plays very well, too," she added magnanimously.

Then she turned with studied grace—in which Linda detected a shade of eagerness—to meet a figure just emerging from the inner room. It was DeVos and in his beautifully tailored yet informal tropical pongee he had more than a little of the distinction which had been so striking on the previous more formal evenings. His slight, courteous bow included both of them.

"At your convenience, Miss Stoner," he said. "You will not join us, Mrs. Averill? I should be delighted to yield my place in your favour."

With a hasty inner comment on his partner's probable reaction to the idea, Linda refused politely. But so tired was she that until she saw that Fleur still lingered and caught the flicker of impatience in the narrowed eyes she did not realize her opportunity.

"Oh, Mr. DeVos!" she exclaimed. "My husband and I have been talking over the plans for tomorrow. You know that the medical examiner has met with an accident and can't come. We thought that since you have had to stay this long it might be as comfortable for you to remain another day—especially in view of the heat—"

"And especially—" cut in Fleur, and Linda yielded the floor with a little sigh of relief. Tom, slowly emerging through the swinging door with a tray on which glasses tinkled invitingly, caught the end of Fleur's invitation. He stopped and Linda, again rallying her brightest smile, drew him into the conversation.

"Mrs. DeVos will be with us to-morrow, I hope, Tom," she said. "Fleur's going to introduce him in the evening to some of our justly famous Long Island roadhouses and we're persuading him to stay over."

"Fluo!"—Tom took his cue promptly. "He can have a dip in the morning and perhaps Pratt will stay too and give him some tennis, even if you and I can't play as we'd planned. We reserved the Country Club courts in advance—they are so crowded over the holiday week-end," he explained to the Belgian. "It seems a shame to waste them."

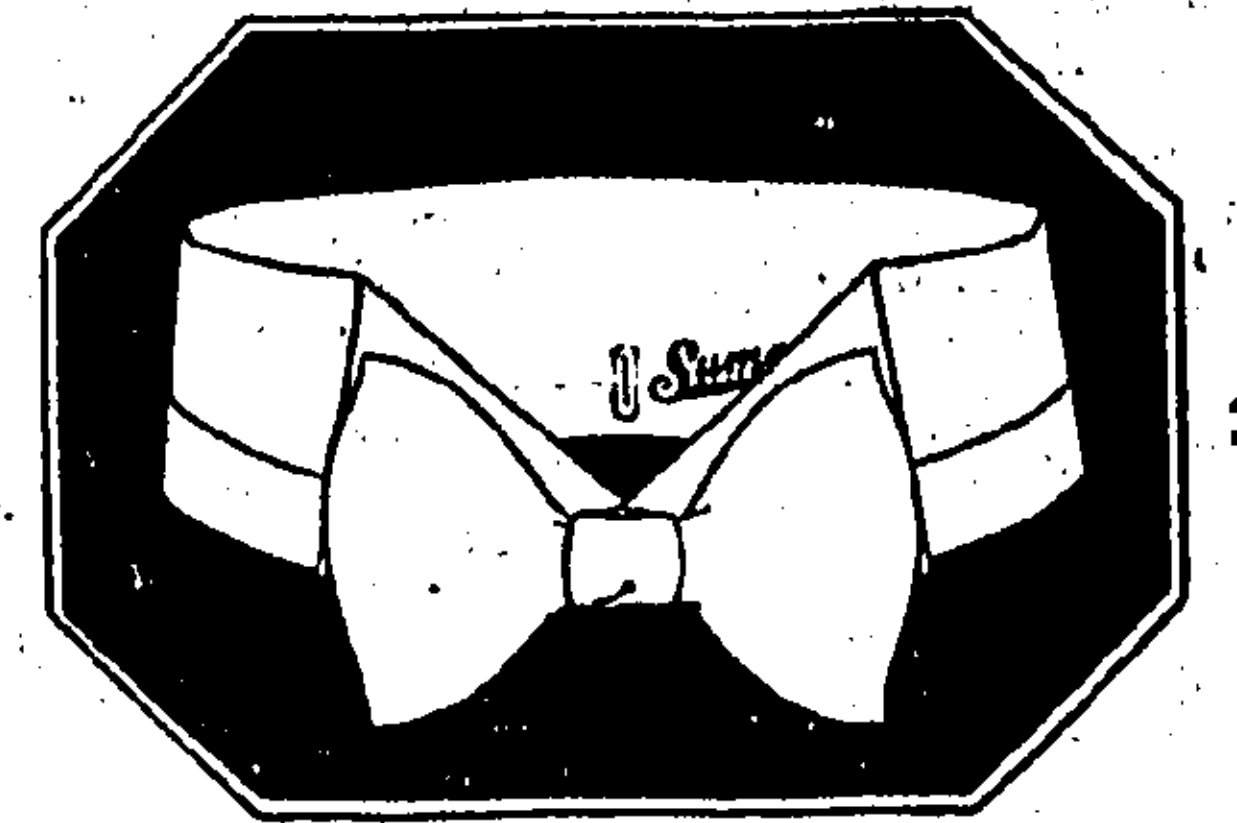

Deliberately he walked along beside the two returning players and Linda saw that he meant the conversation to continue into the drawing room where Marvin could be neatly included in it. He could manage this better than she, in her present frame of mind, so she dropped behind them and made a pretence of arranging the magazines on the central table. She heard several voices, Marvin's deep booming heartiness among them. Then the bidding started with renewed zest and in a moment her husband rejoined her.

"Pratt fell for it," he whispered. "That worked marvelously! Evidently tennis is his meat. Now listen, Binks. You speak to them a moment and then I'll go upstairs with you and we can talk for a little while. Then when I come down you must lock the door behind me. If you're frightened for any reason—or no reason—yell like blazes and keep on yelling. But I'm sure you won't be. If Statlander is the man he must be sure by now that he's safe and all he'll want is for things to keep on as they have been so he can get away without any trouble. A thousand to one he's sleeping the sleep of the just."

"He's the only one now that we have to persuade to stay," Linda's mind had strayed under those admonitions. She wanted only to get to bed and she realized that there was such a thing as being too tired to be afraid.

"Yes. And I can manage him on the business angle, I'm sure. So get this over with, sweetheart, and we'll go up together."

(To Be Continued.)

To-day's approved dress collar style—a collar with broad, square-cut wings set well apart—is interpreted in a most distinguished manner by each of the four Summit shapes. Each has subtle differences in the angle of the wings, the width of the opening, the depth of the band . . . the complete range making it a simple matter to select a dress collar which is an individual expression of correct style.

FRENCH CABINET RESIGNS.

SOCIALIST SUPPORT FAILS PREMIER

Paris, Jan. 28.
 The French Government has been defeated by 390 votes to 193, and is resigning.

The defeat occurred after an all-night sitting on the question of increasing direct taxation by 5 per cent., a motion which had already been turned down by the Finance Commission.

The Premier, M. Paul Boncour, aware of the danger, made it a question of confidence and gave the Left majority the alternative of accepting the main lines of the Government's plan of which this article was the corner-stone or turning out the Government.

M. Herriot, former Premier, declared that the Radicals would vote for the Government in order to save the Republic, but M. Blum announced that the Socialists could not support the Government on this point as it meant the sacrifice of Socialist principles.

The debate was orderly and colourless until the vital moment was reached at 6 a.m.

Two previous votes of confidence had been taken in which the Government gained a majority of about 100 votes on non-vital issues of the Commission's Finance Bill. Nevertheless the defeat was not unexpected, for the Premier was in a dilemma. It was felt that if the Government put a question of confidence upon the vital Articles of the Bill, such as the suppression of bearer securities, the reduction of State salaries by five per cent., and an increase in the income tax, it would be defeated, while if it refrained it would be discredited for not practising what it preached.

Empty Coffers.

The crisis occurred four days before the end of the month when the Treasury coffers will be empty. It will be impossible to raise money in time.

The defeat is due to the split between the two wings of the Government's supporters, but when the Government ultimately refused to bend completely to the will of the Socialists, a split was inevitable.

Later.

President LeBrun took the unusual course of consulting the Premier M. Paul Boncour, for three quarters of an hour after the other Ministers had left the Elysee this morning in order to arrange for the sanctioning of a monthly vote on account for January 31, as the coffers are empty. It is learned that this is constitutionally possible as it comes under the heading of current affairs and the Senate and Chamber of Deputies can accomplish the necessary formalities in time even if the new Ministry is not formed by January 31.—Reuter.

GERMAN CABINET CRISIS.
GEN. VON SCHEICHER'S GOVERNMENT FAILS.

Berlin, Jan. 28.
The German Cabinet has resigned. President Hindenburg has accepted the resignation and requested Herr von Papen to sound the political parties and report on the possibilities of forming a Government on a broad parliamentary basis.

It is understood that President Hindenburg requested Chancellor Von Schleicher to confront the Reichstag, submit a policy and await further developments.

General Von Schleicher was unwilling to comply and obtained permission to discuss the situation with his colleagues, with the result that the Cabinet decided to resign.

His Own Weapons.

Later, The Von Schleicher Cabinet was the twentieth since Germany became a Republic and was in office for only 66 days, the shortest period since the days of the Bismarck Cabinet, with the exception of the 36 days in office of the last Imperial Cabinet of Prince Max. Von Baden, which was overthrown by the Revolution.

The Press generally expresses the opinion that General Von Schleicher was a victim of the same methods he employed against his predecessors.

He was responsible for the downfall of Herr Bruening and it is unlikely that Von Hindenburg could ever forget that he had to drop his friend Herr Von Papen as a result of the attacks by Von Schleicher, behind the scenes.—Reuter.

In educational circles over the reported decision of the United States Government that all Chinese students intending to study in America should deposit beforehand a sum sufficient to cover all their expenses during the projected period of their residence there.

This decision is said to be due to the fact that a number of Chinese and other alien students have been compelled, owing to financial difficulties, to engage in part time work during their period of study, thus adversely affecting the interests of American labour.

It is learned that the Ministry of Education is urging strong representations against the new restriction on the ground that most of the Chinese students have to rely for their support abroad upon periodical instalments and only wealthy people are able to pay all expenses beforehand.—Reuter's Special.

with this special film-removing tooth paste

If you were to allow your teeth to go even one day without brushing them, a coating of film would form and hide their natural brilliance. Your teeth would become dull and unattractive. You could easily see this ugly coating by looking into the mirror or feel it by rubbing your tongue over your teeth.

The new cleansing and polishing material in Pepsodent Tooth Paste gently removes this film and reveals the clean enamel surfaces of your teeth. Besides removing this dull coating, Pepsodent polishes teeth to a sparkling brilliance. It does these two things with perfect safety because its cleansing and polishing material is soft—yes, twice as soft—as that ordinarily used in tooth pastes. Start using Pepsodent Tooth Paste today.

BAD ECONOMICS

The United States, like many other countries, is finding out to its cost that wage-cutting in the name of economy, is only serving to aggravate the unemployment problem. Recent statistics show that wage rates which have been built up over a long period of time have been ruthlessly lowered in the past three years, with the result that millions of workers have been forced to adjust their living standards upon a lower level. The loss in wages and salaries resulting from unemployment and wage reductions for the past two years amounted to over seven millions sterling. The effects of this destruction of such vast buying power can very well be imagined. The argument upon which wage reduction is mainly based is that the cost of manufactured goods will be reduced, the price of commodities will be less, and, as a result, more goods will be sold. But statistics of big industries in which wages have fallen do not support that theory. It is, indeed, a strange economic philosophy which permits the assumption that buying power can be stimulated and made more active through a destruction of the power to purchase. How can more goods be sold when people are compelled to buy less? How can the market for the sale of goods consume and use more when the purchasing power of those who constitute the market is destroyed. Obviously, such an economic theory is unsound and contradictory. It will only be when an enlarged buying power is placed in the hands of the people that prosperity will return. The less demand there is for manufactured goods, the fewer workers will be employed. There can be no demand for manufactured goods where there is no market. There can be no market when those who constitute the market are unable to buy. But an increase of buying power will not alone suffice. It must be accompanied by the creation of jobs for idle men and women. This can be accomplished through a better allocation of the amount of work available among those who are able and willing to work. Society must determine whether it will be menaced by a permanent army of unemployed industry, or whether, through better planning, the amount of work available is to be more equitably distributed. This is the real problem which has grown out of machine-equipped industry and mass production.

The Irish Problem

Mr. de Valera has secured a triumph frankly astonishing to his adversaries and it is evident

now that he chose the time for the Dissolution with astute foresight. The result means two things, at least, that the economic war will continue, and that the social revolution taking shape in the Irish Free State will become intensified. It is now several months since Mr. de Valera trailed the coat of unpaid Irish land annuities for Great Britain to tread on. Since then both countries have been busy with the tariff war. But whereas Great Britain has been concerned merely to wield an economic bludgeon in an effort to compel payment, Mr. de Valera has been deliberately using the tariff to transform the whole basis of Irish life. Hitherto Ireland has been content to use its natural resources to build up an abundance of the food-stuffs it is so well fitted to produce and to export them to England, in return for manufactured articles. The Free State has been, and to a decreasing extent still is, an exporter of cattle, pigs, poultry and butter, and an importer of boots, clothing, coal, machinery and so forth. It was the aim of Mr. William Cosgrave's party to develop and improve Irish productivity along these traditional lines—to raise more and better bacon, eggs, cattle and horses—with a view to bigger and better exports—and imports—thus bringing about a higher standard of living. Mr. Eamon de Valera's political philosophy has an entirely different focus. Everything that the Free State has been buying abroad Mr. de Valera would have it produced at home. Wheat, for instance, which the Irish farmer has been in the habit of importing because he thought it paid better to leave his land under grass, is to be grown on a large enough scale to provide all the bread the country needs—always supposing the climate will oblige. Similar Irish citizens will be tarried into wearing Irish clothes, eating Irish sugar and eschewing foreign goods in every possible direction. His policy seems to have received Ireland's approval. Nevertheless, the cards are not all in favour of Mr. de Valera. He is bound to find that in the long run economic nationalism does not pay—that in fact it is better to be on good terms with your neighbour and freely exchange the things you are best fitted to produce for the things he is best able to supply, than to waste time and energy trying to become self-sufficient.

Peace-Making

Whatever the final outcome, the League's handling of the Manchuria dispute has made clear one thing, that peace cannot be petrified. Its stability must come from movement, from progressive adjustments required to maintain justice in a changing world. The peace treaties made some provision for such readjustments. Article 19 of the League Covenant sets up methods for revision of treaties. This machinery for positive and continuing peace-making is far from perfect. But it is too advanced for nationalist thinking. Consequently the nations so far have refused to use it. And in the last fifteen months they have shown in Manchuria that they are unwilling to use the more drastic sections of the merely negative peace machinery. The recent recognition of that fact has damped many hopes. Others have been chilled by the inability of governments so far to agree upon any general disarmament. In addition the nations have made less progress than had been expected in the amelioration of economic strife and the lowering of trade barriers. Indeed, there has been retrogression on this score and a tendency to divide the world into ever tighter trade compartments during recent months. This view should not engender fear. It should galvanize the peoples of the world into more earnest and timely efforts to overcome the dangers now disclosed. Humanity commands ample supplies of the intelligence and good will required. The question is whether it will become sufficiently aroused to use them, or drift on the currents of apathy and selfishness which have hitherto always carried it into war.

BERNARD SHAW'S QUEST OF THE OTHER WONDERS.

By ROBERT LYND

Mr. Bernard Shaw is now out on a voyage round the world at the age of 76. In the 18th century Dr. Johnson made a tour of Scotland at the age of 62. Dr. Johnson has been regarded ever since as a marvellous old man with almost superhuman powers of endurance, while Mr. Shaw's enterprise at much greater age creates little more astonishment than if he had gone for a week-end to Brighton.

Can it be that it is easier to go round the world to-day than it was to go as far as Skye in the second half of the 18th century? Or is it that Englishmen exaggerated the discomforts and difficulties of Scotland before they discovered what excellent shooting was to be had there? Dr. Johnson would certainly have to perform a greater feat to-day to win so much praise.

You Can't Surprise Us Now

Possibly, the invention of the train, the motor-car and the aeroplane has made it more difficult to surprise our neighbours by merely travelling. In an age in which solitary women fly through the air to the ends of the earth it does not seem to require any out-of-the-way adventurousness to go to a steamer and be borne from sunny port to sunny port with such an abundance of good food that one could easily occupy one's entire time with eating. Professor Piccard's voyage among the snows of the upper air in his balloon makes even a voyage to the South Seas a prosaic achievement by comparison.

Apart from this, we expect men to-day to go on being lively till a much greater age than was usual in previous centuries. We are hardly astonished when a Turk, claiming to be 156 years old, turns globetrotter, and even when he tells us how he fought in a battle against the Russians when he was only 100. But we are gradually getting accustomed to the notion that it is perfectly natural for anybody who has not passed his 90th year to behave like a young man in the twenties, playing violent games, driving fast cars, and climbing the Alps before breakfast.

Restlessness of Modern Age

"I don't believe in letting my age stand between me and anything I want to do," said a woman of 92 the other day, having crossed the Atlantic for the first time; and that sentence and that exploit seem to represent a growing tendency in modern old age, or what used to be called old age.

We talk about the restlessness of modern youth. But what about the restlessness of modern septuagenarianism, octogenarianism and nonagenarianism? The old people of to-day seem to have lost their gift for settling down. Their grandfathers and grandmothers, if they had foreseen it, would have thought them positively flighty. Why, only a month ago Sir Filander Petrie set off at the age of 80 for Gaza, with the intention of living seven months in the desert, though his doctor had ordered him to remain in bed till he had recovered from a chill.

Think of the Example

It is questionable whether this headstrongness and this craving for distant places afford the best possible example to the younger generation. One must not judge the present age, however, by the standards of its predecessors. Everything is changing, and young and old alike are changing with it.

I have myself comparatively little of this craving for distant places. I do not like what I hear about them, and the news about them in the papers gets worse every day. Most of them seem to be bankrupt, and all of them seem to be in an extraordinarily bad temper. What a haven of peace in comparison is St. Ives, with its brood of fishing-smacks in the harbour and in the distance the lime-white gannets closing their black-tipped wings as they plunge into the stormy waves! How charming, for that matter, to stand in Ken Wood and watch a gold-crested wren playing like a humming bird among the brambles!

Temperamentally, I suppose, I am a man who would rather see one place a hundred times than a hundred places once. I like being at places, but I do not much like going to places. Most people, when they fall in love with a strange scene, say: "We must come back here again," but they do not mean it in their hearts. Next year the craving for new places is too strong for them, and they go somewhere else. I, on the contrary, when I say: "We must come back here again," really mean what I say. I would rather go back to the West Coast of Scotland than visit Manchukuo. I would rather go back to Florence and Rome than see all Africa, from the Cape to Cairo. Nothing would appal me more than to be compelled to accept an invitation to travel round the world. I would rather spend the time in old Wiltshire. I sincerely hope I shall not have set eyes on most of the globe before I die.

A World Too Big For Me

It is a good world, but there is too much of it for a man to be able to get accustomed to in one life-time.

Prejudiced though I am against travel, however, and looking on large mountains, eternal snows, and such things with dislike, I cannot help admiring the heroic optimism with which Mr. Shaw sets out to see a world which at the age of 76 he still believes to be worth seeing. Up till now he has not thought America itself worth seeing, but now he is going to look for an hour or two even at America. I doubt whether any man of letters of equal eminence ever made a journey round the globe at the age of 76. Perhaps Mr. Shaw thought it just as well, some time in his life, to see as much as possible of that extraordinary wonder of which he is the eighth wonder.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY

IT IS A HARD AND NICE SUBJECT FOR A MAN TO WRITE OF HIMSELF: IT GRATES HIS OWN HEART TO SAY ANYTHING OF DISPARAGEMENT, AND THE READER'S EARS TO HEAR ANYTHING OF PRAISE FROM HIM.—Cowley.

"Somebody called up and wanted to rent a baby to take part in his New Year's party."

The Very Idea!

NEW YEAR RITES

By Uncle Edward Kelly.
It was the most excruciating New Year we have ever spent. In order to frighten away some evil spirits we had hidden in a white label bottle, someone lot off a string of crackers outside our bedroom door at 4 a.m. It completely ruined the spirit, and our reputation.

We couldn't sleep again, so we changed out of our pyjamas and spent the rest of the night huddled over the radiator.

There are two classes of people who let off crackers outside bedroom windows at 4 a.m. Those who need chloroforming and those who need chloroforming.

Pagan rites, we call it.

Speaking of rites..... We have a friend named Wright. Wright never writes with his right hand. He's left handed.

This may be all right for some people, but what we want to know is why should Wright be wrong when he's Wright? And if Wright were right instead of left why should he be wrong? When he writes with his right or with his left? Sounds funny to us.

What with all this noise going on, we think we must insist that next year, allencers be fitted to the exhausts of all crackers. Then the Chinese can make as much noise as a St. Pat's day procession, and we won't hear them.

And now, children, we must leave you. There is so much noise going on outside our window that we can't hear ourselves write.

And, besides, Pete has some evil spirits in his room.

So Bunky-doo, little ones, bunnkydoo, while Uncle Eddie goes out and buys himself a nice long string of bombs.

This is ZBW closing down. You have just been listening to a running commentary on Chinese New Year. The noise in the background was the voice of the commentator. G-o-o-d-night, listeners, g-o-o-d-night.

SNAKES ALIVE.

A snake fancier of no mean order, our ears cocked up when we heard that one of Dr. Herklot's little pets had had an accident. We went to extend our condolences.

"The patient," said Dr. Herklot, "is going on as well as can be expected."

We could not ask whether he had Turned the Corner, as he had already turned about eight.

The patient is a python, and if it had not been for Dr. Herklot's he would probably be an ex-python. We saw him yesterday in his specially heated ward under the doctor's bed.

He became a patient on Thursday. One of his companions, who, we understand, has something of a reputation for anti-social conduct, bit him right along the dotted line, though whether this misadventure was prompted by a whimsical appetite or should be consigned to the category of crime passionnel is still uncertain. At any rate, there was a 12ft. reticulated python in danger of becoming a series of instalments, so Dr. Herklot's put 38 stitches in the patient's damaged bodywork. We would have given him the grapes we took up but he threatened to get friendly so we ate 'em ourselves.

SPECTATOR'S JITTER.

Several "incidents" in which spectators have been told to stand in the corner have been reported from Fanling, where the interport golf tournament is taking place.

In one instance a member of the gallery shouted "Go on" as a player's ball bounded across the green. It has not been stated where the player told the member of the gallery to go.

Yesterday a spectator moved as a competitor was addressing his ball. The latter showed that he could also address a spectator.

(Future golfing phrase: "He hits a long spectator.")

Well, these gallery-ites may have deserved censure, but it must be remembered that the soul of a spectator is exceedingly intricate, a positive labyrinth of fragile emotions, repressions, and other psychological bric-a-brac.

There was a period when we ourselves suffered agonies from "Spectator's Jitter" (Galleryitis Dithorans), a complaint which consists of an irresistible desire to shout some comment which is always the wrong one.

We were cured, however. It was on the green. He needed a four-footer for a half and a 3 and 2. We could see his stance was all wrong. The three Kelly principles were forgotten. We did not know how to contain ourselves. We didn't. Neither did he. When we woke up in the infirmary we swore we'd never help him again. The bad-tempered cuss!

PRINCE MARRIES HANDMAID

ROMANTIC LOVE AFFAIR IN GERMANY

Berlin, Jan. 23.
The climax to one of the most romantic love-affairs of recent times took place to-day in the little town of Stolberg, in the southern Harz Mountains, when the son of one of Germany's most ancient princely houses, Prince Wolff Heinrich of Stolberg, was joined in wedlock to Fraulein Irma Ertel, daughter of a local town-clerk and former handmaid to the Prince's mother.

Of the bridegroom's family, only his sister, Princess Imagina, attended the wedding while the other members of the family demonstrated their disapproval by staying away.

Inhabitants of the town of Stolberg, however, showed their sympathy with the Prince's democratic views by making the day one of general rejoicing which ended in a torchlight procession to the castle, where the happy groom acted as host to the entire town. The couple subsequently left on a wedding tour to Italy.

The Prince, who, though only 29 years old, is the head of the House of Stolberg, announced that he will dissolve the princely household and henceforth live as a private citizen.

POPE'S CALL FOR PRAYER

TRUE SCIENCE NOT ENEMY OF FAITH

Rome, Jan. 23.
The Pope, in a speech published in the Observatore to-day, instructed all Catholics to offer special prayers in the forthcoming Holy Year for divine help in scientific researches. These, he said, if sincere and complete, can only lead to faith.

"No true science can be an enemy to the faith," he added. "Imperfect impartial science, that which stops short of the light, can mislead. Sincere and complete science, however, which seeks only truth, can but lead to the faith and can render it true homage."

The Pope said that, to learn the real truth, seekers must first understand humbleness of spirit, and for this virtue he recommended prayer.

The speech was delivered yesterday in the Consistory Hall on the occasion of the approval of two miracles which were advanced for the beatification of Sister Vincenza Grossa, one of the founders of the order of Sisters of Charity.—Reuter.

EIGHT THOUSAND YEARS AGO

RELICS UNCOVERED IN HUGE MOUND

Chicago, Jan. 23.
An expedition by the University of Chicago and the Oriental Institute has resulted in the finding of a village where men lived 60 centuries before Christ, it was revealed to-day.

By digging into a huge mound, the relics of a people who existed 8,000 years ago were uncovered. They lived in a little Stone Age village not far from where the Persians, hundreds of years later, built their magnificent block marble palaces in Persopolis, the ancient capital.

These palaces, in which immense treasure was found after the Macedonian conquest, were those of the legend which tells of Alexander setting fire to them with his own hand at the instigation of the courtesan, Thya, in 331 B.C.—Reuter.

BRIGHT HOPES FOR BRITISH TRADE.

CHANCELLOR REPORTS ON INDUSTRY IMPROVEMENT

London, Jan. 23.
The year 1933 is beginning with better prospects than last, according to Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who in a speech at Birmingham struck a note of optimism based on signs of improvement in the cotton, steel and shipbuilding industries. The consumption of cotton had increased nine per cent. in England last year.

There was still a need of fortitude, however, for there would be no relief from taxation at the expense of an unbalanced budget the consequences of which would be far more disagreeable than a short continuance of the burdens.

International agreement remained essential to Britain's return to the gold standard.—Reuter.

Ten persons were killed, 100 seriously injured, when fire swept a Tokyo department store at the height of the holiday shopping rush. Scores were trapped on the roof of the building and many leaped in panic to the street. The picture shows at the left a canvas rescue chute being raised to bring down those trapped on the upper floors and roof.

ROBBERS BIND CASHIER

ROBBERY ATTEMPT FAILS

While Li Ping-chun, cashier in a wood fuel store at 1891, Reclamation Street, Yau-mat, was going through his books yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, a knock sounded at the door, and he admitted two men, the first of whom said he wished to make a purchase. Close on their heels pressed a third customer, who, as soon as he had entered, quickly closed the door after him.

An attempt to rob then became apparent. The three so-called customers threw the cashier to the ground, but before he fainted, presumably with fright, he had yelled out an alarm.

On coming to out of his swoon, the cashier found that his wrists had been tied together, but of the robbers there was no sign. His first thought on freeing himself was to investigate the safe, which he found intact, although showing evidence of an attempt having been made on it.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Love" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." (1 John 4:7).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.... Yea, though I walk through the valley

PAWNBROKER IN TROUBLE

GAVE FOUR DOLLARS FOR $400 RING

A diamond ring valued at $400, after being stolen from a Chinese broker, was found by the police in a Hollywood Road pawnshop where it had been disposed of for $4.

The disparity in prices was the subject of police comment when they charged Lam-Pak-ming, assistant accountant of the Chiu Loong, the pawnshop concerned, with failing to detain a small boy who offered him the ring, as required by law where the circumstances were obviously suspicious.

Det. Sergeant Fitches stated that the ring was recently missed by its owner, a broker who lives at 118, Lockhart Road, Wanchai. Suspicion was attached to a small boy living on the same floor, who was seen to enter the broker's room, and when the police were brought in, he confessed and took them to the Chiu Loong pawnshop where the article was found to have been pawned for a fraction of its value.

The pawnbroker was fined $100. The boy was bound over in a sum of $50. The case was before Mr. Schofield.

of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." (Ps.23:1,2,4)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The fear of disease and the love of sin are the sources of man's enslavement. 'The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom,' but the Scriptures also declare, through the exalted thought of John, that 'perfect Love casteth out fear.'" (p.373.)

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

The Empress of Japan is due here from Shanghai at 11 a.m. on Saturday.

Commander F. C. Flynn has been appointed in command of H.M.S. Sandewich, and will leave Marseilles by the P. & O. liner Ranpara on February 10.

Amongst the passengers who left for Home by the P. and O. liner Carthage on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hamilton, and Mr. Handley Pegg.

Two cases of small-pox, one case of diphtheria, two cases of typhoid and one case of meningitis were reported to the local health authorities during the three days ended on Friday, January 27.

Saturday was the end of the Mahomedan fasting month, or Ramzan, being the first day of Shawal. There was a large gathering in the morning, at the Shelly Street mosque for prayers, and alms were given to the poor.

The "Full House" sign was displayed at the Queen's Theatre yesterday, when large crowds gathered for the opening screenings of "Kismet," a spectacular show featuring Otto Edmeyer. The film is a distinct and welcome change from the ordinary run of pictures and is noteworthy alike for the magnificent settings and fine acting. In particular, Otto Skinner, as Hajj, the Beggar, gives a remarkably finished performance, being ably supported by a talented cast. A film not to be missed.

The new Hongkong Hansard, containing the reports of meetings of the Legislative Council for 1932, published by the S. C. M. Post, Ltd., is on sale, the price being $5 a copy.

Whilst driving his car along Mataluk Road on Saturday afternoon, Mr. A. B. Cleme, of the China Light & Power Co., Ltd., knocked down a Chinese, Fong Chi-sing, aged 26 years, of the Sam Yeung Silk Factory. The man received injuries to his right hand and was taken to the Kowloon Hospital.

The St. Louis Industrial School (Salesian Institute) celebrated yesterday the Patronal Feast of the Congregation, the Feast of St. Francis de Sales. A solemn High Mass was said at 10 a.m. at which the Rev. Fr. MacDonald, S.J., preached a panegyric of the Saint. After the Mass, the visitors present were taken round the different departments and given an idea of the work done by the boys.

A distressing mishap occurred in the Wanchai District on Saturday evening. Shortly after 6 o'clock, a child, Wong Flu, aged seven, of the second floor of 7A, Tai Wong Street, was standing on a stool near a window trying to reach for some food in a basket. He over-balanced and in trying to save himself grabbed at the window but unfortunately seized the bolt which shot down. The window flew open and the child fell into the back yard, sustaining rather severe injuries. He was subsequently removed to the Government Civil Hospital.

No-one knew who the victim was at that time. On the body was a singlet bearing the three characters "Lam Pak Hong" and by means of these characters the identity of the dead man was established. Sometime later, Chan Kau, the prisoner, was arrested. He was detained and questioned, and, in answer to the man who arrested him, he said "No; not so."

OBJECTION RAISED.

In consequence of their enquiries, the police charged Chan Kau on November 9 and he made a statement.

At this point, Mr. Lim objected to the statement being read before it was proved.

Mr. Fraser said the statement would be proved in evidence. At that time, the police were not sure that they had arrested the right man and held an identification parade, attended by the folks of a shop which deceased had visited. The prisoner was known to those folks, and the purpose of the parade was to discover whether they had the right man. They knew his name was Chan Kau, but they wanted to make sure that that was the man they held in custody.

The parade proved nothing and was not important to the jury. After the parade, accused asked if he might make a voluntary statement. He was told that he might. That statement would be produced in evidence, and on it a great deal depended.

THE MOTIVE.

As to motive, the murder was, it was alleged, committed by the accused, by a relative of deceased, and a street barber.

His Lordship interrupted, pointing out that as the evidence had been objected to, he did not think counsel should refer to the motive in his opening.

Three people went on Mr. Fraser, frequented the shop, two besides deceased. They were Lam Yate, the street barber and the accused. On the evening before the murder, accused called at the Man Hing Cheung, and the barber and the accused left at 6.30 p.m.

The prosecution would not put before the jury facts from which they would be asked to draw the inference that on that evening Chan Kau, Lam Fat, and Lam Fuk-lun met somewhere away from the shop and proceeded to the place where the crime was committed. The trial is proceeding.

FOUR STOWAWAYS FINED

STOLE TRIP FROM MAURITIUS

Seven Chinese were brought before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning, standing away on the s.s. Capo St. Francis from Mauritius to Hongkong.

Sergeant Smith, who prosecuted, said the defendants were discovered four days after the ship had left Mauritius. They were mixing with the passengers. A fine of $50, or one month, was imposed on each case.

CHINESE OUTPLAY THE SHANGHAI INTERPORTERS

CRICKET FEATURES

MANY EXCELLENT PERFORMANCES

IN FOUR LEAGUE ENCOUNTERS

Quite a number of useful performances with bat and ball featured the four matches in Division 2 of the cricket league on Saturday.

Outright decisions were reached in all encounters, the results being:

H.K.C.C. 183 for 7 dec beat Recreio 104 by 79 runs.
K.C.C. 101 for 1 beat R.A. 77 by nine wickets.
R.E. and S. 128 for 7 beat Navy 44 by seven wickets.
Police 168 beat University 135 by three wickets.

A partnership of 111 for the second wicket made certain a winning score for the Hongkong Club, and the debacle of the Recreio was complete when five bowlers took part in their dismissal for 104.

H. Overy was devastating with the ball for the Kowloon Cricket Club, his seven Artillery victims bring obtained for 25 runs. Confident batting by C. I. Stapleton, who made his first half century in local cricket this season, and Norman Mackay, gave the Peninsula team a comfortable win.

Lieut. Anstruther shone with a fine all round display against the Navy, firstly taking four wickets for ten runs, and following it up by scoring 42 not out.

E. R. Wynne smote the University bowling high and low to put a rapid 58 against his name and five points in the Police league record. The Varsity attack was but mediocre and never looked good enough to dismiss the Police for less than 135.

The chief individual performances on Saturday were:

HONGKONG RUGBY TEAM WIN AGAIN

TOO GOOD FOR THE U.S. MARINES

Shanghai, Jan. 28. Playing in sunny weather and before a large crowd the Hongkong Rugby Interport players this afternoon swamped the formidable United States Marines by sixteen points to three.

The game was colourless, the visitors showing marked superiority, and the issue was never in doubt.

In the first three minutes Hongkong scored a try through G. P. Lam-mert, D. McLellan converting from a difficult angle. At half time the score was five points to nil in favour of Hongkong.

Immediately after the resumption, M. W. Turner scored a try which was not converted. Later J. P. Whitman scored a try, but this also was not converted. Then near the close of the match Dr. J. A. R. Selby went through to score underneath the post in a scramble. McLellan made no mistake and converted.

One minute from time the Marines scored a try through their captain, J. H. Slusser. The effort however, was unconverted.

The outstanding players for Hongkong were G. P. Lam-mert, J. P. Whitman and Dr. J. A. R. Selby, the visiting captain.—Reporter.

CHINESE HALF BACKS AND INSIDE FORWARDS IN FINE FORM

BRADLEY AND STAN GASH INJURED IN GAME OF MANY FOULS

WEEK END SPORTS COMMENTS BY "VERITAS"

TWO INCIDENTS IN—

THERE was something very reactionary about the football displayed by Shanghai against the Combined Chinese on Saturday, and this factor contributed more than anything else to their defeat by five goals to two.

AFTER their sparkling show on Thursday, the visitors appeared very tired, lethargic, and suffering from football anaemia. This was not to be wondered at, and personally I thought they gave an astonishingly good account of themselves in view of the opposition and the fact that ten of the team had taken part in the gruelling Interport only 48 hours before.

THE game enjoyed several prominent features, some of which leave pleasant recollections, and others, not so pleasant.

AMONG the former was the entrancing play of the Chinese half backs and forwards in their movements towards goal, and the brave but unavailing effort of Shanghai in the first quarter of an hour of the second half, to draw level.

ON the other hand the very questionable tactics of the Chinese left one with the impression that either they placed too much importance to the game, in which case their sense of perspective and the methods of its materialisation were all wrong, or that their ideas of sport and decent play were sadly lacking.

ONE can, perhaps, appreciate their desire to win. One can even understand that in the excitement of such a game technical fouls are inevitable. But one cannot accept any explanation or conceive any extenuating circumstances for the flagrant breach of rules as displayed by Tam Keng-pak and other members of the Chinese eleven.

FOR one thing, there was no necessity for dirty tactics on their part. They indicated quite early in the game that they were clever enough footballers to beat Shanghai, and this fact only aggravated their offences. After Thursday's delightfully clean and sporting encounter, Saturday's game was at times fitted only to be ranked as a dog fight.

APART from this unhappy feature and the consequent result of too much whistle, the game was both entertaining and exciting, with the Chinese worthy winners, even if the margin did somewhat flatter them.

THAT Ip Pak-wa, Fang King-cheung, Tam Keng-pak trio! Oh! What a different story there would have been to tell if they could have played in the Interport. They were dazzling and bewildering, with their inter-passing, and what shooting! Everyone of their five goals were the culmination of a movement conceived somewhere about the halfway line and were made apparent before the penalty line had been passed. It was good football and would have beaten a better team than Shanghai.

FUNG King-cheung showed that he is still the brainiest leader of the attack in local football. His long swinging passes to the wings were gems and made easy the labours of Cheng Shui-hong and Chan Kwong-lu.

MANY spectators were puzzled when the Chinese were seen to take the field with twelve players and line up with Leung Wing-chui and Tong Kwan in the left half position. Mr. Mok Hing went across to Tong

Kwan, and putting his arm around his shoulders spoke in a confidential way to him, but it was Leung who eventually ran off the field to leave Tong Kwan to play a very fine game.

TONG Kwan gave Keats very little rope, and when he wasn't upsetting the clever Shanghai winger, Lau Siu was. Keats appeared annoyed at Lau's close attention, which at times appeared a little too rigorous and vigorous.

Once in the first half, when Lau used his arms rather harshly, Keats turned round to appeal to the referee, but the official was out of hearing.

BUT it was from Lam Yuk-ying that the finest half back play of the afternoon came. The Chinese centre half was exceptionally good, and not only figured prominently in breaking up the Shanghai attacks in their early stages, but kept his forwards on the move with splendid openings.

WITH Li Tin-sang and Lau Mau on such good form, it can easily be appreciated how difficult was the task of the Shanghai forwards, but it is to their credit that they not only pierced that defence twice but kept it on tender hooks, and actually desperately defending for two long periods during the match.

UNFORTUNATELY for the Visitors, the attack was never permitted to settle down to the same as played in the Interport, and there was something very akin to their tactics and those of the Hongkong team on Thursday. There were quite a number of bright individual efforts, but very little cohesion. Chen and Jack were great workers, but Collett and the wingers were too well marked to turn their movements to account.

STANLEY Gash was obviously puzzled and perplexed by the elusiveness of the Chinese inside forwards, and although he spent all of the afternoon trying to work out their movements he was little the wiser at the end.

I thought May put up a remarkably good show and his was progressive football, which is the least one can say for it. Vance seemed very weary, and Turner appeared uneasy about Tam Keng Pak's doubtful tricks with feet, head and hands. Voong, on the other hand, was in his element and emerged from his duels with Ip Pak-wa with honours divided—no small feat.

A most unnecessary tackle by Tam saw Bradley's head opened when the goalkeeper was in the act of clearing. It was another very unpleasant incident and one to be strongly condemned. But the injury did not prevent Bradley from continuing to give a thoroughly good display between the sticks, and that he was given five times was no reflection on him, but a tribute to the brilliant marksmanship of the Chinese.

JUNIOR SHIELD

ANOTHER "hat-trick" by Pau Kap-ying yesterday! This clever leader of the South China B attack played a prominent part in the defeat of St. Joseph's in the Junior Shield by four clear goals, and in him the S.C.A.A. have a youngster of immense possibilities.

THE Chinese were much too good for the Saints, dominating the play in mid-field, stopping any of the losers' attacks from developing and being deadly themselves in front of goal.

RUGBY

SATISFACTION in the Colony's Interport rugby performances in Shanghai was rendered complete yesterday morning when it was learned that Hongkong had beaten the U.S. Marines in the second match of the visit by 16 points to 3.

IN both the Interport and the friendly on Saturday Hongkong asserted a superiority which was only partially reflected in the scores. It is gratifying to know that the whole team played so well, and the results vindicate the sound methods of the Club this season in team building.

MAKING any thing but an auspicious start to the season, the Club, thanks to the pains-taking endeavour, not only developed a defence capable of beating the best the China Fleet and the Army could turn into the field, but

INCOG'S MATCH ABANDONED

By "Bully-OG"

Of the three Mamak League hockey matches arranged for the week-end, two ended in dispute, and sequels are promised in each instance.

The Radio Sports Club, present champions, lost their first game of the season to the R.A.S.C., when Senior netted the only goal, but immediately after the match the Radio captain intimated he would protest against the biased decisions of one of the referees.

On Sunday, the Incognitos, who enjoy a clean record in the League, were playing a drawn match with St. Andrew's, when the game was abandoned by the referee six minutes made by spectators concerning one of the officials.

In the third encounter, the German Club sustained their eleven defeat when they fell to the R.A.M.C., by four goals to two. The German players led by two clear goals at the interval, but the Medical men staged a fine recovery to score four times in the closing stages.

Seal Victimised for Interport Display

SELECTED LAST THURSDAY FOR GAME TO-DAY AND DROPPED AT THE LAST MINUTE

Shanghai Team Not Finally Chosen: Li Ning and Gash on Injured List: Bossuet Comes into Side

SHANGHAI CAPTAIN HURT ON SATURDAY

Li Ning.

(By "VERITAS").

Bossuet.

SELECTED last Thursday to play for the Combined Services against Shanghai to-day, Seal, the Artillery and Interport outside left has, to the amazement of one and all, been dropped at the last minute, and Lieut. Hocquard of the Lincolns brought in to play on the left wing.

This is one of the most remarkable and unfair actions of which I have ever heard. Seal has apparently been kicked out because he failed in the Interport, and the Services selectors assuming that, because he played below his form in one match, he is bound to do so in another.

But even this is not the most important point. No matter how Seal played last Thursday, he had been nominated to appear on Monday, and only circumstances such as illness should keep him from playing. Seal was chosen on the form he had shown up to Thursday's match, and not consequent on that game. The selectors' latest action is extremely unreasonable.

SHANGHAI CHANGES.

Shanghai are making several changes in their team for this afternoon, all available reserves being brought in, including Bossuet and Bosseret.

Unfortunately difficulty is being experienced in filling the right back position.

Li Ning, who was brought down as reserve back injured himself during the practice immediately after the team's arrival, and it seems very unlikely that that he will be able turn out.

Stanley Gash also suffered a slight injury on Saturday which will keep him out to-day, so that Voong has to be brought in at centre half.

Bossuet, who now reports that he has completely recovered from his leg injury, will be seen at inside right, whilst Bosseret is displacing K. C. Chen at inside left.

Hay, who played such a good game on Saturday retains the right half position, although, in view of Li Ning's inability to play, Remedios may be brought into the side at the last minute.

THE TEAMS.

The Shanghai team, as selected up to this morning was:

Bradley:
A. N. Other and Turner:
Hay, Voong and Vance:
Keats, Bossuet, Collett, Bosseret and Hughes.

The Combined Services side, which finds Baldry, the ex-Interport left winger operating at outside right, and Davey preferred to Podmore at right half, has finally been selected as follows:—

Johnson:
Allen and Mullane:
Davey, Pardoe, and Robertson:
Baldry, Rawson, Malpass, Ridley and Lt. Hocquard.

BOSSUET.

The reserves are: Ash, Podmore, Harris, Jones and Usher. The kick off is at 3 p.m., the match being played on the club ground, and will bring to a close the Interport programme.

To-night, the Interport dinner is being held at the Peninsula Hotel, when the Telegraph Cup will be handed to Mr. Stanley Gash, the Shanghai captain.

HONGKONG WIN GOLF INTERPORT.

AMAZING DISPLAY AGAINST SHANGHAI

Hongkong yesterday won the triangular golf Interport, when they defeated Shanghai in the singles by six matches to nil.

The results were:

M. W. Budd (Hongkong) beat J. W. Harrison, 3 and 2.
L. R. Andrews (Hongkong) beat W. H. C. Huggitt, 5 and 6.
O. E. C. Marton (Hongkong) beat D. Ward Smith, 10 and 9.
T. A. Pearce (Hongkong) beat T. S. M. Terrace, 9 and 8.
E. J. H. Mitchell (Hongkong) beat P. H. Prevot, 5 and 4.
A. E. Lissaman (Hongkong) beat A. V. Pettit, 6 and 5.

The outstanding feature of the Budd-Harrison match was the Shanghai player's fine fighting finish. Budd was too good for him in the morning. After a rather shaky start which found him two down at the third, Budd played the steady type of golf which seems to lack incident, keeping well down the middle of the fairway with powerful drives, on to the green, and down in two. Harrison was not so consistent and went in to tiffin five down.

Harrison endeavoured to keep up his warm pace and holed out at the 32nd in holes three, but Budd was with him this time and became dormy four. Harrison produced another birdie to win the thirty-third, but his fine fight was brought to an end on the next green, where he narrowly missed another long putt which would have given him his third successive birdie and the hole. The afternoon scores were:

Budd: 4 3 5 4 4 4 5—38.
Harrison: 4 4 3 3 4 0 4 6—38.
In.
Budd: 4 0 5 5 3 5 4—33.
Harrison: 5 5 3 4 2 4—28.

Andrews v. Huggitt. Andrews made certain of his match in the morning when he played brilliant golf and finished eight up. Huggitt struggled along in fairly good figures, but five birdies and an eagle and Andrews' all-round efficiency left him pretty helpless.

The scores tell the story:
Andrews: 5 4 3 5 4 4 3 5.
Huggitt: 6 4 5 4 4 5 4 5.
Andrews: 5 4 5 4 4 4 3 4.
Huggitt: 6 4 5 3 5 5 4 4 4.

Marton v. Ward Smith. Ward Smith made Marton fight in the morning, but was swamped in the afternoon when the Hongkong player produced some of the finest golf of the day. Marton was two down at the third and all square at the sixth and completed the morning round two up, after many changes of fortune.

Out: 8 4 4 4 4 3 4 5—35.
In: 6 3 5 3 5 3 4 4—30.

Pearce v. Terrace. Pearce took the lead at the second hole and never lost it. He was always outdriving his opponent, although using his baffle from most of the tees, and in an endeavour to keep up with him Terrace was inclined to press.

Out: 5 3 5 3 5 5 4 3 5.
In: 4 5 4 8 5 4 4 5 4.

Terrace v. Mitchell. Mitchell was out in 40 and home in 38, while Prevot who knocked his opponent's ball into the hole on one of the greens had 80, coming in one down. Prevot squandered the 18th in a struggle which marked the morning play seemed certain. But Prevot

LEAGUE VIEWS VARY COMMITTEE REPORT EXPECTED SOON

Geneva, Jan. 27.

After 2½ hours the meeting of the Committee of Nine adjourned until this afternoon, having made considerable progress with the earlier paragraphs of the report relating the League case in the light of developments from the beginning of the dispute.

The Committee is still faced with very conflicting amendments and has not yet decided in what form the recommendations contained in the Lytton Report will be embodied.

The recommendations, likewise, have not yet been touched upon, but it is clear that they will ultimately figure in the report of the Committee of Nine.

Later. The Committee of Nine, re-assembled at 6 o'clock this evening to continue its discussions. The meeting in the evening, except upon two points, completed the draft of the first three parts of the report, which will be read a second time to-morrow.

The preamble is very brief, consisting of just one sentence explaining the report. The second part deals with the history of the dispute, both from the Geneva and Far East ends, and gives a connected account of the origin and development of the dispute, especially on the chapters of the Lytton Report, the resolutions passed by both the Council and the Assembly and the documents issued by the League, as well as Consular despatches from the Far East.

Chapter 3 and the conclusions drawn up by the League Secretariat comprises 12 points based largely on Chapter 9 of the Lytton Report and certain passages extracted from other parts of the Lytton Report, such as the section stating that Manchukuo was not of spontaneous growth.

The two points which failed to achieve unanimous approval were those dealing with the boycott and whether the Japanese acted in legitimate self-defence. The text as proposed by the Secretariat says that the boycott cannot be considered illegal when directed against a Power which is itself using military force.

Apparently some opposition was manifested in this wholehearted endorsement of the principles of boycott. On the other hand, it was pointed out that the question whether the Japanese were acting in legitimate self-defence raised certain juridical points which might involve special investigations by juridical experts.

The Secretariat draft concludes with the words that if, at the outbreak of tension between the parties to the dispute which existed previous to September 18, the responsibilities would seem to be divided between the two parties, responsibilities on the part of China cannot be considered involved for events subsequent to September 18.

There was no discussion as regards recommendations, which will probably be left to the meeting of the Committee of Nineteen early next week, but Secretariat circles favour proposals based on the ten principles of Chapter 9 of the Lytton Report.—Reuter.

The Conclusions.

London, Jan. 28.

It is considered probable in Geneva that the report will be agreed upon early next week. It is understood that the whole report will be put into a single document which will comprise a preamble of the history of events in Manchuria down to December 1931, based on the Lytton report and the history of subsequent events including the failure of conciliation.

The report up to this point has been completed and its next section dealing with the conclusions is at present under consideration. The final part of the report will offer recommendations and there is every likelihood that the Committee of Nineteen will shortly be able to submit the whole report to the Assembly.—British Wireless.

Russia Annoyed

Moscow, Jan. 28.

It is understood from Soviet circles that the Government is increasingly resentful of the Japanese policy on account of frequent allegations that the Soviet Government is forming a secret alliance with China against Japan.

Well-informed circles declare that Japan is persisting in this policy in spite of protests from the Government.

Furthermore, Soviet officials regard as extremely unfair the statement made by the Japanese War Minister in the Upper House of the Diet that Japan will build an air force equal to the Russians, because M. Stalin's recent speech

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

There has been some discussion as to the correct meaning of "Kismet," probably the most popular word known only to English speaking countries. "Kismet" is the title of the famous Edward Knoblock play, which First National has pictured, starring Otis Skinner, and now showing at the Queen's Theatre. "Kismet" (or "qismet") means destiny, or fate. An Oriental, learning that his daughter has run off with a person below her caste, will say, "It was her Kismet," meaning that it was her fate and beyond her control. Nearly all the Eastern people are fatalists, and one of the reasons why they have become known as philosophical and self-contained is because they excuse the greatest catastrophes as being "Kismet." It is not so much that they feel that what is done is already done and there is no recalling it—which would come under the name of philosophy—but the Koran tells them that Allah has preordained their lives, and any occurrence, no matter how unusual or horrible is met with the resignation that comes from realizing that that particular event was written in heaven before the birth of time. The picture, "Kismet," is laid in Baghdad of the Thousand and One Nights, and is probably the most elaborate production ever sponsored by First National. Loreta Young has the principal feminine role in support of Mr. Skinner.

In First American Film. Dagover comes to town soon—headed by Dagover who was the original Nun in Max Reinhardt's "The Miracle"—daring Dagover who was all but drowned in the North Sea when doing a perilous movie stunt. The lady who is rated abroad as the first lady of stage and screen—comes to the Queen's Theatre on Thursday in the title role of "The Woman From Monte Carlo," her first American picture. Lil Dagover believes the role of the butterfly wife of Captain Corlax in the coming picture to be her finest emotional vehicle. The thrilling scenes of "The Woman From Monte Carlo," which includes, love, intrigue and tragedy, give her an opportunity to cover the range of feeling, and in all the moods she is superbly successful. When you see her you will realize the truth of the praise accorded her everywhere "The Woman From Monte Carlo" has been presented. Her support is exceptional. Walter Huston and Warren William play respectively husband and lover of the captain's wife. Others who have prominent roles are George E. Stone, John Wray, Robt. Warwick, Oscar Apfel and Maude Eburne. The able direction is by Michael Curtiz.

"Horse Feathers," latest of the mad, merry comedies of the Four Blarney Brothers, opens on Thursday at the King's Theatre. Groucho, Chico, Harpo and Zeppo are again at together in a picture that affords them opportunities for the same type of nonsense presented in "Animal Crackers," "Monkey Business," and "The Cocoanuts," their three previous movie efforts. S. J. Perelman, Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, well known humorists, wrote the book. Music and lyrics are by Kalmar and Ruby, and Norman McLeod, in charge of direction of "Monkey Business," directed the new picture.

A notion picture producer who prefers to keep in the background rather than court the spotlight and who really objects to being photographed is rare in Hollywood. Howard Hughes has spent several millions of dollars in the last few years giving big entertainment to the public, very little is known of the man. Mr. Hughes is discussed constantly in the film capital because of his lavish expenditures on pictures, but he very seldom has anything to say for publication, preferring to let his productions speak for him. On the second floor of the Metropolitan Studio office building in Hollywood, there is a $25,000 projection room which contains every conceivable form of sound projection apparatus, a modernistic setting for the screen, and uniform taste, and comfort. It was here he viewed a United Artists picture, now showing at the King's Theatre. In addition to the comedy, the picture contains plenty of thrills with battles in the air participated in by more than fifty aeroplanes. Spencer Tracy, George Cooper, Williams Boyd and Ann Dvorak play the principal roles.

"Tom Brown of Culver." The entire student body of 700 cadets at the Culver Military Academy in Indiana paraded for scenes in "Tom Brown of Culver" the Universal drama which is now showing at the Central Theatre with Tom Brown, H. B. Warner at the Summerville in the featured role. The colourful atmosphere of Culver serves as a background for a story which is filled with interesting and picturesque scenes, as well as a quality of dramatic intensity which makes "Tom Brown of Culver" one of the most unusual screen plays of the season. The usual screen plays of the season, Warner and Slim Summerville includes Richard Cromwell, Ben Alexander, Russell Hopton, Andy Devine, Dick Winslow, Sidney Toler, Willard Robertson and many others.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED IN PRINCIPAL CITIES

Shanghai, Jan. 28. Apart from commemorative meetings at which patriotic addresses were delivered, the first anniversary of the Shanghai "War" passed off quietly.

With the city be-flagged for the New Year and crowds in the streets in holiday mood, a striking contrast was provided with the atmosphere of a year ago when the events leading up to the Sino-Japanese clash were gathering momentum minute by minute.

It was on the evening of January 28 last year, that Admiral Shiosawa issued his now historic statement saying that the Japanese naval forces intended to occupy Chapel, but events were to prove that this task would take not one night but five weeks, and would require an army of 50,000 men.—Reuter.

Another Hero.

Colonel Wu Tan, battalion commander of the 10th Route Army, accompanied by 20 of his men left Shanghai by train for Nanking last week with the avowed determination to join the Chinese volunteers in Manchuria to fight Japan. Colonel Wu who also participated in the Sino-Japanese armed hostilities in Shanghai last year was inspired, it was said, by the example of heroic resistance for the defence of the South Gate of Shanghai put up by the late Colonel An Te-hsing who was killed as a result.

Peking Ceremony

Peking, Jan. 28.

Under the auspices of the Peking Kuomintang a meeting was held in the Party's auditorium this morning to commemorate the anniversary of the Shanghai "War." The proceedings opened with five minutes silence in honour of the Chinese dead. Resolutions were passed expressing determination to recover the lost territories. Speeches were delivered eulogizing the famous 19th Army.—Reuter's Special.

Pu Yi's Cousin

Peking, Jan. 29.

The Peking branch of the Military Council has issued an order for the arrest of Pu Wei, or Prince Kung, cousin of the Manchukuo regent, Mr. Henry Pu Yi. The order is based on a report of the former commander of the local gendarmerie saying that Pu Wei had secretly arrived in Peking and was busily recruiting the former members of the Imperial Guard for service with the Manchukuo army. Chinese reports indicate that Pu Wei has already left the city.—Reuter's Special.

TRAVEL ON THE

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Perhaps the most unusual bidding of the entire tournament of the American Bridge League took place on the following hand, which was played in the recent national contract team-of-four contest.

Mr. George Reith and Mr. B. Jav Becker of New York City, who, with their teammates, Mr. Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Mr. S. Garton Churchill, won the coveted trophy, were forced into a grand slam declaration which they made on the following hand.

♠A-J-8-2	♥A-J-5-3	♦A-Q-9-2	♣None
♠Q-10-7-6	♥9-5-4	♦8-6	♣A-K-Q-J-9-6
NORTH	WEST	EAST	SOUTH
♠A-8-7	♥10-7-6	♦7-5-4	♣4-3-2
♠K-7-4	♥A-K-8-4	♦K-J-10-3	♣A-8-7
21

Mr. Becker held the South hand. His partner, Mr. Reith, sat in the North. Mr. Becker opened with one heart. West overcalled with two clubs and Mr. Reith in the North bid three clubs.

This is what is known as a cue bid—it shows control of the club suit, no losers, and normal support in partner's suit.

East passed. Mr. Becker now bid three diamonds. West bid three spades and Mr. Reith made another cue bid of four spades, showing control of the spade suit.

East now put in a psychic overcall of four no trump, trying to throw a monkey wrench in the machinery with the hope of stopping the slam. Spade doubled and West, just to complicate matters, redoubled.

This suited Mr. Reith in the North, even though he knew there was a slam in the hand. East, however, now took out with five clubs. Mr. Becker passed.

West made a bold but clever bid of six clubs, hoping with this bid to stop North and South from bidding. Mr. Reith was not to be denied and bid six hearts, which East passed.

Mr. Becker realized that his partner held a very powerful hand. He decided against a doubtful grand slam bid as usually a small slam bid will produce good results in a tournament.

But West now bid six spades, hoping to take a sacrifice. This, however, proved a very bad bid as it now forced Mr. Reith in the North to bid seven hearts.

Mr. Becker, in the play of the hand, made his grand slam, but was forced to take the spade finesse.

It is interesting to note that a grand slam can also be made in diamonds. However, it can only be made if bid by South.

If North happens to bid the diamonds, which was the case at one table, and the hand is played for a grand slam by North, East will open the deuce of hearts which will be immediately ruffed by West, thereby preventing a grand slam.

An unusual bid; but one that helped to decide a championship.

NEW PASSENGER LINE.

EXPRESS SERVICE BETWEEN OREGON AND THE ORIENT

Inaugurating a new express passenger and cargo service between Oregon and the Far East, the States Steamship Lines' steamer General Pershing arrived in Hongkong on Saturday.

The General Pershing is the first of three vessels of the line which will maintain a regular three-weekly service between Portland and Manilla, via San Francisco, Japanese ports, Shanghai and Hongkong, the other two vessels being the General Sherman and the General Grant.

The three vessels are part of the famous "White Fleet" of the United Fruit Company, and have been chartered on long time charter by the States Steamship Lines for the new Far Eastern service.

One-class accommodation is provided aboard each of the ships, the passengers having the entire run of the vessels, thus bringing to the Far East a class of service that has long since become a regular feature in other parts of the world.

More than usual attention has been paid by the States Steamship Lines to the requirements of consignees, and extensive refrigerating space is provided for perishable cargoes. On the present trip the General Pershing carries large consignments of fruits and meat for Manilla.

Many prominent passengers are travelling by the General Pershing on its maiden voyage to the Far East, including representatives of Oregon's political and business world.

The General Sherman will arrive in Hongkong in three weeks and will be followed by the General Grant. The General Pershing departed for Manilla at 7 p.m. on Saturday.

MUSICAL LUMP OF ICE

PROF. RANKINE'S TRICKS

NOW I SHALL DRINK THE SEA

"Now I shall drink the sea." The professor did, and before the end of the lecture he was drawing carols from a dulcimer by stroking it with solid alcohol and soda water fizz.

Joyfully children and their parents brushed aside the Royal Institution's annual pretence that its Christmas lectures for juveniles are on science. Jack and Jill know quite well that in spite of his ordinary-looking clothes Professor A. D. Rankine, Professor of Physics in the Imperial College of Science and Technology, who was giving his first lecture on "The Round of the Waters," should really be wearing oriental robes aplashed with abracadabras.

They suffered gravely the incantations about galvanometers and thermo-couples, for strange syllables are part of the bargain in magic. But they insisted on their miracles, demanded more with shouts of "Go on," and refused to leave at the end till they had thoroughly inspected the sorcerer and his methods.

Bursts of applause greeted his continual successes. He made water out of the air—not much, but quite enough for comfort. He persuaded a wandering light on a blackboard to take his temperature. He showed that all the water in the sea is but a glassful compared with a big globe model of the earth, and if you were big enough, you could easily drink it." He did.

"Bombs" Explode.

But the cup of beef tea, the bombs, and the tuning fork with a feeling for alcohol were the biggest successes. The professor was endeavouring, so he maintained, to stir his cup of beef tea when, hey presto! his spoon had melted away in his hand and poured into the cup.

Amid sympathetic cheers he explained that the metal was to blame—it had such a nature that almost anything would melt it.

Meanwhile three iron bombs, filled with water, had been lying quietly in a bath of ice on the floor. "As soon as they are cold enough, they will explode," Professor Rankine promised, explaining why water pipes burst in the frost. Suddenly, one after the other, they obeyed with enormous bangs, amid deafening applause.

Finally, he elicited music from an impressionable tuning-fork in the most original way—by pressing it gently against a block of frozen alcohol and carbon dioxide. Lustily it sang, and on a dulcimer the touch of the frozen alcohol drew forth a merry carol, to send the children home to tea.

MILLION MILES AN HOUR

BALLS OF FIRE WHIRLING IN SPACE

Atlantic City, Dec. 29. The Society for the Advancement of Science heard details of science's latest way of learning how water makes heat through measuring the energy of the single vibration of a molecule. Research, the scientists told, shows that molecules vibrate a trillion times a second, and provides a basis to study how a molecule may vibrate so violently that it is shattered to atoms.

The results of twelve years' observations have revealed a gigantic pin-wheel, composed of two balls of fire as big as twenty-four suns, whirling out in space at the rate of a million miles an hour in a space about as wide as the distance between the earth and the sun.

Professor Raymond Dugan, of Princeton, revealed that research had shown the pin wheels of the star Cassiopeia, which was so distant that even the telescopes make it a mere pin point of light though it is actually a twin star.

Other astronomical revelations made at the meeting included Dr. Harlow Shapley's theory of how the world began, in which he stated, his belief that the sun, moon, earth and other planets were born simultaneously from a whirling eddy in spinning gas composing the Milky Way's parent.

CONVICTS' WREATH FOR CHAPLAIN
"FOR ALL OF US HE DID HIS BEST."
The funeral took place recently at Carlisle, Isle of Wight, of the Captain Joseph Woodhouse, of the Church Army, for 20 years assistant chaplain at Parkhurst convict prison, who died suddenly in his office at the prison.
The floral tributes included a wreath from the prisoners bearing the following inscription: "With respect and affection from the inmates of his Majesty's Prison, Parkhurst."
"For all of us he did his best: 'We hope in Heaven he'll find sweet rest.'"
The Governor acceded to the prisoners' request that they might be allowed to send the wreath. It consisted of one chrysanthemum and eight carnations, and the card was written by one of the prisoners.

JAPAN QUITE PREPARED TO DEFEY THE LEAGUE

AGREE TO DIFFER ON MANCHURIA

BLAND APPRAISAL OF SITUATION

NO MORE QUIBBLING AT GENEVA

TOKYO, Jan. 30.

THAT JAPAN WILL PROCEED WITH HER PROGRAMME IN MANCHURIA WITH OR WITHOUT THE LEAGUE'S APPROVAL, IS THE INFERENCE DRAWN FROM AN INTERVIEW WITH A FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN THIS AFTER-NOON.

Tokyo's instructions to the delegation at Geneva have not yet been drafted, he declared, when commenting upon Press reports that the Foreign Office had decided to instruct the Japanese delegation to refrain from attempting to prevent the possible application of Paragraph Four, Article Fifteen.

While declining to confirm the reported decision, however, the Foreign Office spokesman expressed a personal opinion that the application of Par. 4 would be welcome to Japan as it would put an end to the present uncertainty.

If the League's recommendations under Paragraph Four are distasteful to Japan, the position would simply be that Japan and the League would agree to differ, after which Japan would be free to go ahead with her own policy of restoring peace and order in Manchukuo in accordance with the Changchun Protocol without further interference.—Reuter.

KAILU AGAIN BOMBED

JAPANESE TROOPS IN THE BATTLE

ATTACK BEATEN OFF

Peking, Jan. 30.

Japanese military operations in the Kailu area are continuing, according to Chinese reports, which state that the city has again been subjected to a heavy aerial bombardment.

The air force machines engaged in the operations are cooperating with the military, who appear to have the intention of occupying the city.

A fierce attack was launched on the night of January 26, Kailu being heavily bombed from the air, while Japanese and Mongol troops attempted to storm the city.

The attack, it is claimed, was driven off and the city is still in the hands of the Chinese, who report that in the course of the fighting, thirty-seven Japanese and Mongols were killed and several hundred wounded.

The Japanese allege that Kailu is being employed as the base for the Volunteers who have been constantly harassing communication on the Tungling Railway, which has been cut at several points recently by Chinese raiding parties.—Reuter.

JAPAN AND LEAGUE

MANDATED ISLES STAND

WAR

Tokyo, Jan. 27.

A Government spokesman declared to-night that Japan views the mandated islands, such as the Carolines and the Marshalls as the spoils of war, and intends to uphold this position. This is taken to mean that if Japan withdraws from the League of Nations, she will insist on the retention of these islands.

A Rengo dispatch from Shanghai stated that a three-hour battle was fought early on Friday morning at Chiumenkow between the Japanese garrison there and a body of Chinese.

The Chinese force, believed to belong to the command of Ho Shu-kuo, Chinese commander of the Shanhai-kwan district, was said to have attacked the garrison and after the engagement retreated westward.

CASUALTIES UNKNOWN.

Japanese reinforcements were rushed to the scene, an important pass in the Great Wall, from Suichung, a point on the Peiping-Mukden railway north of Shanhai-kwan. No casualties were mentioned in the dispatch.

The Japanese garrison was established at Chiumenkow on January 9 after the occupation of Shanhai-kwan, when a cavalry regiment from Chinchow and Japanese infantry from Shanhai-kwan effected a junction. Marshal Chank Hsueh-hang, it was alleged, had been sending troops into Jehol province through this point.

and Mr. E. M. B. Ingram, Counselor of the British Legation, is boarding the Suwo to-night and is sailing early to-morrow for Nanking.

The British Minister expects to remain in Nanking for several days at least, exchanging opinions with Mr. Lo Wen-kun, Foreign Minister, and other officials.—Reuter.

INTERPORT ROWING

HONGKONG BEATEN IN MANILA

In the Interport rowing match between the Manila Boat Club and the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club at Manila on Saturday, Hongkong lost both the fours and the pairs. A brief message has been received to this effect by the R.H.K.Y.C. from Mr. H. W. Duley, the visiting rowing captain.

Both events were very keenly contested, the Manila oarsmen coming in three-quarters of a length ahead in the fours and a quarter of a length in the pairs. Mr. Duley's telegram stated that the races were excellent.

Hongkong was represented by Messrs. G. S. D. Heywood, K. Knudsen, C. B. Easterbrook, H. W. Duley, and I. G. Allison.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT OFFER

M. DALADIER AS NEW PREMIER

Paris, Jan. 29.

President Lebrun has invited M. Edouard Daladier, Minister of War in the defunct Paul-Boncour Government, to form a Cabinet with himself as Premier, and M. Daladier has accepted the task.

It was first reported that M. Daladier had reserved his reply which is customary in the circumstances, but it was later learned that, on the contrary, the Radical leader had definitely accepted the Premiership before leaving President Lebrun.

DETERMINATION AND ENERGY.

In a brief interview outside the Elysee, he declared: "I am quite aware of the difficulties of the moment, but I think the solution is only a question of determination and energy."

The prospective Premier is only 48 years of age and this will be his first attempt at forming a Government though he has been a Cabinet Minister since 1924, after five years as a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

LEFT WING LEADER.

He leads the Left Wing of the Radical-Socialists, having caused a split between his group and the Right Wing which supported the Poincare Government. He has been successively Colonial Minister, Minister of War, Minister of Education, Minister of Public Works and Minister for War in various governments.

He is a great friend of M. Caillaux and there is a distinct possibility of the return of the famous politico-financial expert to the Finance Ministry if M. Daladier succeeds in forming a Cabinet.

He told pressmen that he hopes to complete the formation of a Cabinet of Republic Action by this evening. M. Herriot and M. Paul Boncour have promised him their full support.—Reuter.

BIG TOKYO BUDGET DEFICIT

DIET BATTLE IN MAKING.

BOND ISSUE PLAN

Tokyo, Jan. 29.

With the Diet starting its deliberation on the budget estimates for the coming fiscal year, conflicting opinions are being expressed regarding the wisdom of filling up the huge deficit of over ¥900,000,000 between revenue and expenditure by means of bond issues.

It is, in fact, the question of how this deficit ought to be met: rather than the record-breaking size of the deficit, the record-breaking size of the deficit is the centre of controversy.

The swelling of the budget figures is almost wholly due to the heavy military expenses, necessitated by the operations in "Manchukuo," and to the emergency relief measures for helping the poverty-stricken agrarian communities.

"UNAVOIDABLE."

Little criticism is therefore likely to be made against either of these two large items, as, under existing circumstances, the feeling amongst the people as a whole is that they are unavoidable. It is round the question of the deficit that the main battle is likely to rage, and although there seems little likelihood at the moment that the Government will budge from its belief in the advisability of covering it solely and entirely by bond issues, it is noteworthy that the Japan Economic League is strongly opposed to this policy and is urging the necessity of taxation reform and administrative readjustment and that loan issues should be replaced by an increase in taxes.

The main fear of those who oppose the seemingly reckless resort to the present loan policy is, of course, that serious inflation will be the inevitable result. The Government, however, profess confidence that nothing of the sort will happen, as adequate steps have been taken to prevent it.—Reuter.

CAR CRASHES INTO WALL

MAN AND WOMAN

A Chinese man and woman, passengers in a hire car, were injured when the vehicle crashed into a wall near the Talkoo Recreation Club in Shaikwan Road yesterday.

The injured persons were Fung Ming-kwan, 45, a widow, and To Yu-chau, 30, a clerk, both of whom live at 171, Lockhart Road Wanchai. They were taken to the Government Civil Hospital. Their injuries are not considered to be serious.

SECRET SYDNEY MEETING

BOARD OF CONTROL IN SESSION

BEGINNING

Sydney, Jan. 30.

The Australian Cricket Board of Control met at half past ten this morning to discuss the reply of the M.C.C. to their "body-line" bowling protest, which has given rise to the bitterest controversy in the history of Test cricket.

The M.C.C. in a carefully worded and dignified reply to Australia's protest, objected to the suggestion that the M.C.C. side were employing "unsportsmanlike" tactics and indicated their readiness, if the Australians thought it desirable, to cancel the remainder of the tour.

No inkling has been given of the reactions of the Board of Control to this rather curt reply, but as most of the delegates arrived with laughing faces, it is suggested that there may be a happy solution of the problem.

The discussions are being held in the greatest secrecy behind closed doors but it is anticipated that a statement will be issued when the Board has concluded its deliberations on this vexed question.—Reuter.

GERMANY'S PROBLEM

HITLER IN DOUBLE HARNESS

DIFFICULTY OF COALITION

Berlin, Jan. 29.

Hitler and von Papen running in double harness seems to be the solution of the political problem, if Parliamentary government is to be restored, though there are doubts in some quarters whether it is possible for them to team up without friction.

Nevertheless, opinion is growing that Herr Hitler will become the next Chancellor and will form a Cabinet with Herr von Papen.

Von Papen and Hitler.

as a powerful Vice-Chancellor, as, in fact, the effective controller of Germany's destinies.

COALITION HOPES.

Hitler's success in the Diet will be dependent upon the support of the German Nationals, the Hugenberg Party, and the toleration of the Centre Party and the Bavarian People's People.

"Such a coalition," it is felt, has the best chance of success and it will also meet the approval of President Hindenburg, who has instructed Herr von Papen to impress upon Hitler that a new refusal to join a coalition would have disastrous consequences.

CENTRE PARTY CONDITION.

At the moment, the Centre Party forms the greatest obstacle to coalition, because their leaders demand guarantees from both Hitler and Hindenburg that the conduct of the government will be kept strictly within the constitution. Dr. Bruening is the most powerful influence in the Centre Party.

The suggested coalition would give the Hitler-von Papen Cabinet a majority of 82 in the Reichstag, with the Centre Party holding the support of 107 votes. The Government would be assured of the support of the Nazis, 195 seats, the German Nationalists, 51, and the Bavarian People's Party, 18, giving them 264.

THE OPPOSITION.

The Opposition would be formed by the Socialists, 121, the Communists, 100 and other parties, 27, a vote of 248. The Centre Party hold 70 seats in the Reichstag and as long as they are prepared to support the Government a clear majority is assured. They could not encompass a defeat by abstaining from voting, but a few adverse votes would suffice.

In the circumstances, it is essential that the government should secure some assurance of support from Dr. Bruening, and it is not thought likely that this will be easy to obtain.—Reuter.

WEATHER OUTLOOK

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

This grey costume of rough, pebbly crepe shows just how elegant burgundy velvet corduroy collar and cuffs may be. A burgundy feather in the back of the little grey hat adds style. The collar is the latest round shape and the cuffs are well-calculated to flatter the hands that wear them.

HAVE A NOVELTY FURNITURE DANCE!

By A Hostess

Hostesses who are giving informal dances are now on the look-out for novelty items to enliven the programme and "mix" the guests. Here are a few suggestions.

A Musical Dance, in which each couple changes partners with the couple nearest each time the music stops. This mixes people together in the same way as a Paul Jones does.

A Spoon Dance, six men being in the middle of the room holding spoons and breaking in on couples who are dancing. The man thus separated from his partner takes the spoon and "breaks" a different couple.

A Tray Dance, where one man and his partner have a small tray each and have to hand it on to other couples. This goes on until the music suddenly stops, when the couple holding trays have a short exhibition dance.

A Slipper Dance. Every girl takes off one slipper, which is thrown into the centre of the hall. When the band starts playing each man seizes a slipper and has to find the girl to whom it belongs, with whom he has the dance.

A Card Dance. Two identical packs of cards are arranged so that corresponding cards can be distributed to an equal number of men and girls. For the dance, each man has to find as his partner the girl who is holding the card matching his own.

Polishing Cloths

Dissolve ½ cup of shredded soap in a large cupful of hot water. When cold, stir in ½ teaspoonful of liquid ammonia.

Beat this to a smooth paste, and put into it some pieces of odd flannel or linen, and allow them to absorb as much of it as possible; then squeeze them out and dry

Newmarket Checks the Latest.

A cheerful friendliness enters our rooms with the bold checked tweeds which are the latest dictates of fashion for furniture.

All kinds of fascinating combinations of colours, such as blue, purple and jade; yellow, grey and black; jade and grey or jade and yellow, are being used for upholstery, easy chairs, settees, stools, fireside chairs, and the seats of dining chairs. To old furniture and period rooms they give a touch of smartness and modernity without being out of keeping. And they are eminently suitable for the upholstery of chromium-plated, steel-tube or cellulose-lacquered furniture.

Sceptics still hold up their hands in horror at the mention of this type of furniture, but it has come to stay, and is certainly labour-saving, comfortable, and cheerful.

Curtains may be of the same materials as the chair coverings, or of lighter fabrics such as striped linen tweed or checked gingham. Nothing is so homely as this simple material in cheeks large and small, in colours subdued and gay, and nothing is more easily laundered.

The newest designs in gingham have bright horizontal stripes in varying widths, and sometimes two or more different widths are employed in one scheme.

It would be well to line the tweed curtains in rooms facing south. Both gingham and linen tweeds, too, are stronger and hang better if they have linings.

A quick rub with one of these cloths will make brasses brilliant, and keep spoons and forks in good condition.

TO-DAY'S RECIPES.

Three Simple Soups.

The French are wonderful at devising a soup out of nearly nothing at all. Here are some that sound incredibly simple, and yet are very good.

One. Put some stale bread into salted water, cook it very slowly for a couple of hours, then pass it through a fine sieve. Put it back on the fire, add a good piece of butter, bind it with the beaten yolk of an egg, and serve with grated cheese.

Two. Cut up three onions and brown them in butter. Add two pints of boiling water, season with salt and plenty of pepper, and cook for half an hour.

Pass the soup through a sieve, put it back on the fire, throw in some vermicelli, and cook for another ten minutes.

A Cod's Head supplies the third. Fry two chopped onions in butter till they are golden, then add two dessertspoons of flour mixed with a teaspoonful of curry powder, and put in the Cod's Head.

Cover with water, add three tomatoes cut in slices, a bayleaf, two or three sprigs of parsley, and a pinch of thyme, and simmer gently for two or three hours.

Strain finely, season with salt and pepper, and serve with vermicelli or fried croutons.

PRUNE JELLY

Stewed prunes and custard are very often an abomination. Not so Prune Jelly.

Soak the prunes, half a pound of them, and stew them until they are tender with two ounces of castor sugar, a slice of lemon (or two), and enough claret and water in equal parts to cover them. When they are done, strain off the liquor, stone the prunes and pass them through a sieve.

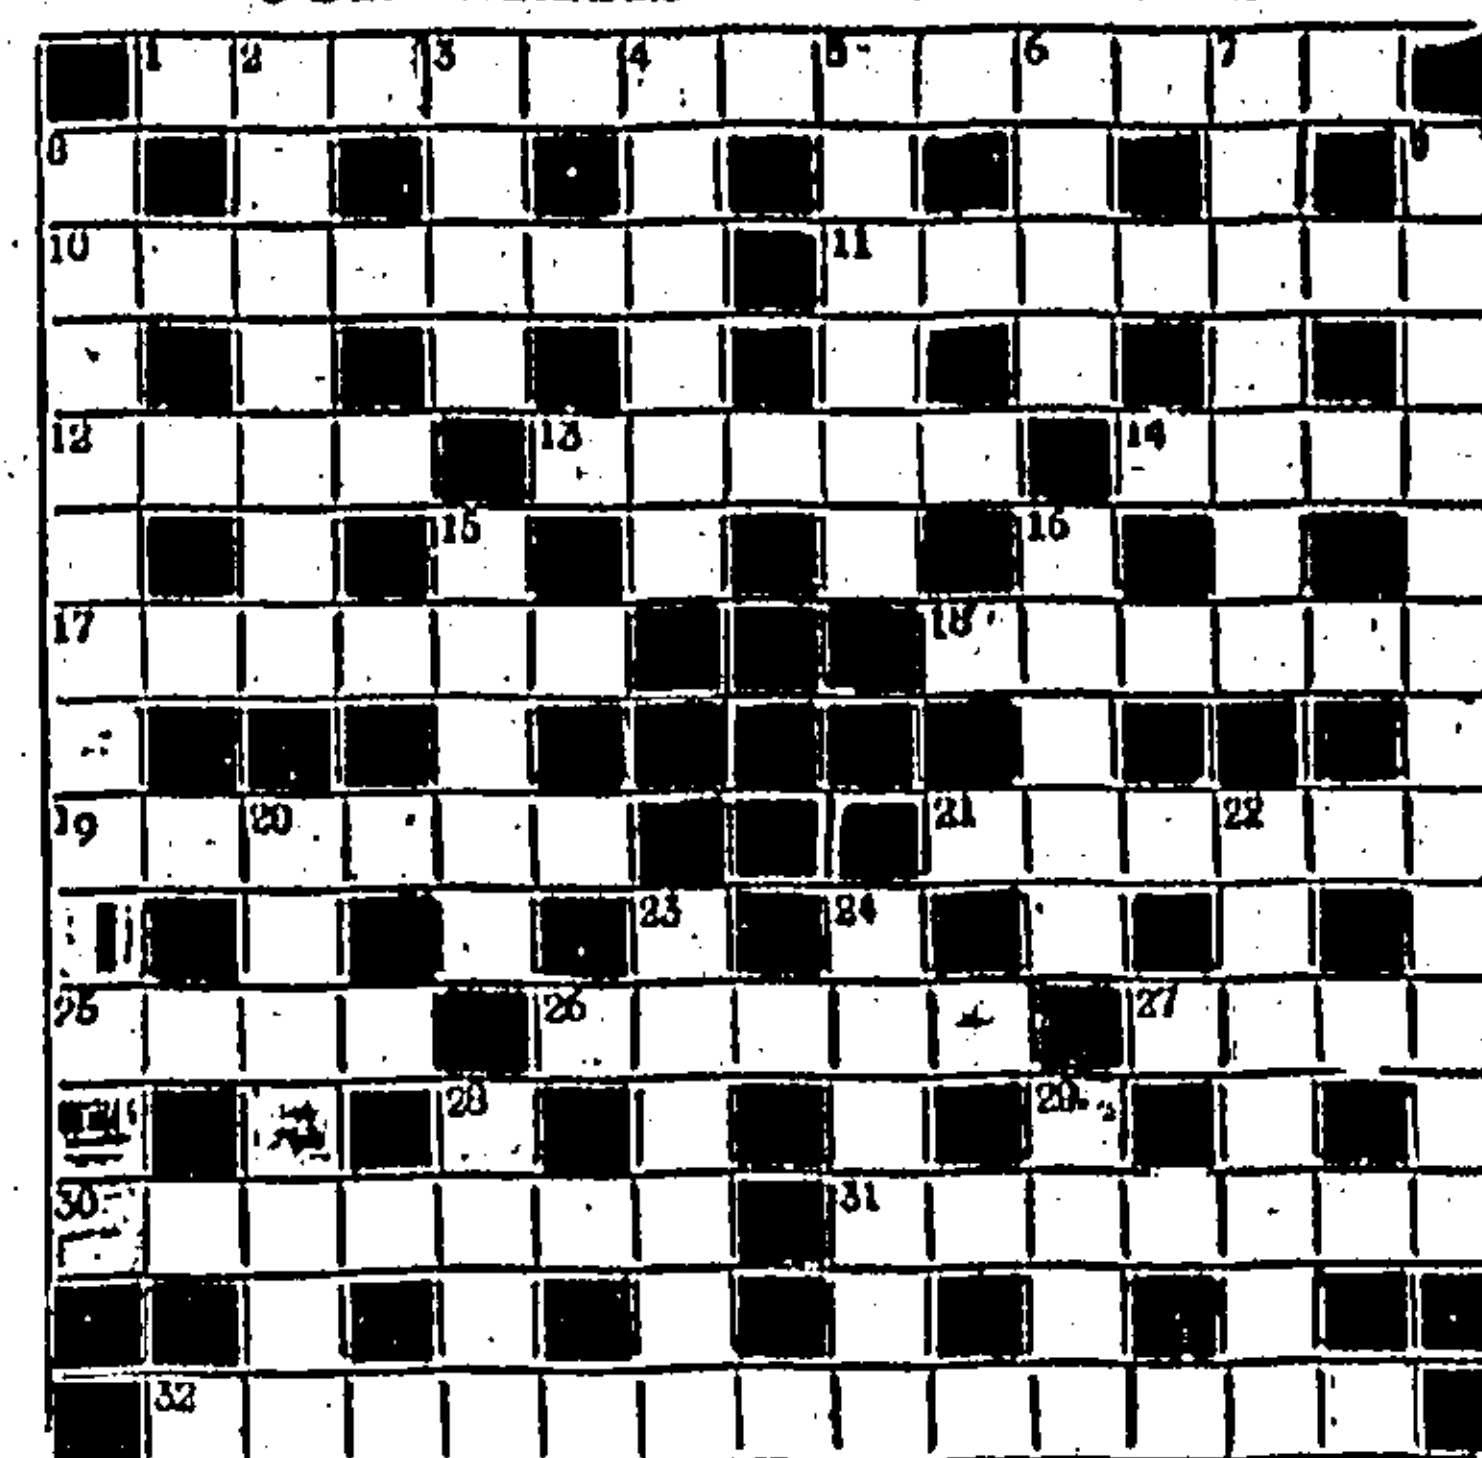

Now dissolve about an ounce of gelatine in the liquid in which the prunes were cooked, mix the prune pulp with it, and add a glass of chariot or, better still, a liqueur-glassful of cherry brandy. Pour all into a mould, and set on ice or in a cool place.

If you like, you can crack the stones and put the kernels back into the pulp, and you can also decorate the mould with blanched almonds. A very excellent sweet indeed.

This is Schiaparelli's new waistcoat of blistered wool. It is made of two thicknesses of the wool in contrasting colours such as grey and deep red, and is caught at the waist with an elastic belt.

GREAT NEW MYSTERY SERIAL

"WEEK-END MURDER"

BY GABRIEL F. FORBUSH

CHAPTER XXXVI.

They waited until they saw Shaughnessy turn in at the garage door. Then Linda and Tom faced each other. The distant voices of the four around the bridge table rose in quick expert bidding.

"They'll be at it for hours yet!" mused Linda. "Heavens, Tom, but I'm all in! I'll stop and say good-night and then go on up. You'll have to stick to the ship till the better end. If you get a chance to put in a word about staying, it might help. I promise to be up early tomorrow to talk to them all in the morning."

"Now wait a moment," said Tom thoughtfully. "Just what are you proposing to do?"

"I told you—go to bed."

"He raised eloquent eyebrows. For a moment she did not understand. Then she cast an apprehensive glance upward, as though the one guest who had gone to his room might be within earshot, and sat down suddenly on the little hall bench.

"Tom—you mean Mr. Statlander! He went up an hour ago. Oh, have I got to be afraid of even just going up to my own room?"

"When the next room is occupied by a potential—"

"Don't! Don't say it. I know what you mean! But we can't both go upstairs and leave those people all the rest of the evening. That would be too rude!"

"The rest of the evening! It's after 11 now."

"Well—till their game breaks up. And I am so tired, Tom!"

"Tell you what I'll do," he began judicially, and stopped as a cool, amused voice broke in.

"What on earth are you two talking about so seriously? Hello, Linda—haven't seen you before. Got a cigarette, Tom?"

The beautiful Fleur, slim and willowy, her hair exquisitely coiffed, her curiously narrow eyes enhanced by soft blue shadows, her eyebrows delicately arched, her rather thin lips rounded into more gracious lines, drifted out into the central hall. As often, Linda immediately felt crumpled and hot and awkward.

Her guest, stooping down to adjust a lock of hair by the aid of a long, low mirror over the early empire sofa, had said nothing of the cause for her hostess' excusable absence nor commented on her very apparent fatigue. Annoyance, acting as a tonic stimulant, brought Linda to her feet with a bright smile and her most guileless expression.

"Hello, Florrie! How's the game going?"

By the faint hardening of her features the other showed that the abhorred name had been heard.

"All right, I'm dummy. Mr. DeVos is playing my hand." To Linda's keen ear an unconsciously possessive note had slipped into the studiously indifferent voice.

Before she could answer Fleur went on with the same negligent air, only a little sharpened to wariness as she watched her hostess in the mirror.

"By the way, Linda, I only wish I had known you were having—these people down."

"But you did, child. You were here to dinner Thursday and I invited you some time ahead."

"Oh, yes—I mean—"

It was easy enough to see what she meant but she sought words to express indirectly her annoyance that Linda had given no intimation of the unusual attractiveness of one guest in particular. "I'm sorry I had not happened to meet Mr. DeVos before. I'm taking a crowd out to-morrow to the White Horse Inn."

"Someone backed out?"

Linda was all practical interest. Fleur's airs always tempted her to be irritatingly literal.

"Why—yes. I was wondering—I understand your guests had to stay overnight but expect to go to-morrow. The trouble is, our house is full. Mostly mother's and father's friends. Such a bore to have that sort for the Fourth of July week-end! I do need another man, Linda darling—"

It was a habit of Fleur's when she wanted anything but did not want to be put in the position of asking for it to trail off in an indeterminate sentence, and to wait for the other person to make the actual suggestion. Linda had learned just how long she could leave the unfinished sentence suspended in the air between them, thus filling Fleur with vague alarm lest she might have to further her own scheme openly, or worse yet, see it ignored entirely. This time Linda did not indulge in her favourite bedevilment. Fleur's calculating little manoeuvre too aptly fitted in with her own cherished plan.

"That is a shame! I know he'd love to move right over to that gorgeous place of yours. But, Fleur, don't worry. We'd be delighted to have him stay here. After all, it seems senseless for him to go back to town Sunday when he would enjoy another day outdoors and have one of your exciting parties for the grand climax. Because I'm—out of things" (she had an impulse to add politely "Perhaps you heard of the death of my cousin?" but restrained it) "doesn't mean Mr. DeVos can't simply stay at the house and do as he pleases on his own."

The slight cloud on Fleur's unlined forehead cleared instantly away. Her desires usually arranged themselves thus expeditiously.

"That's too nice of you, Linda! Sure it won't be any trouble? They must be waiting for me," she went on hastily, perhaps fearing lest her question be taken literally.

"I must go back. He plays a marvelous game of contract, Linda. Too bad you can't take a hand for a while. Mr. Pratt plays very well, too," she added magnanimously.

Then she turned with studied grace—in which Linda detected a shade of enigmata—to meet a figure just emerging from the inner room. It was DeVos and in his beautifully tailored yet informal tropical pongee he had more than a little of the distinction which had been so striking on the previous more formal evenings. His slight, courteous bow included both of them.

"At your convenience, Miss Stoner," he said. "You will not join us, Mrs. Averill? I should be delighted to yield my place in your favour."

With a hasty inner comment on his partner's probable reaction to the idea, Linda refused politely. But so tired was she that until she saw that Fleur still lingered and caught the flicker of impatience in the narrowed eyes she did not realize her opportunity.

"Oh, Mr. DeVos!" she exclaimed. "My husband and I have been talking over the plans for tomorrow. You know that the medical examiner has met with an accident and can't come. We thought that since you have had to stay this long it might be as comfortable for you to remain another day—especially in view of the heat—"

"And especially—" cut in Fleur, and Linda yielded the floor with a little sigh of relief. Tom, slowly emerging through the swinging door with a tray on which glasses tinkled invitingly, caught the end of Fleur's invitation. He stopped and Linda, again rallying her brightest smile, drew him into the conversation.

"Mr. DeVos will be with us tomorrow, I hope, Tom," she said. "Fleur's going to introduce him in the evening to some of our justly famous Long Island roadhouses, and we're persuading him to stay over."

"Fine!" Tom took his cue promptly. "He can have a dip in the morning and perhaps Pratt will stay too and give him some tennis even if you and I can't play as we'd planned. We reserved the Country Club courts in advance—they are so crowded over the holiday week-end," he explained to the Belgian. "It seems a shame to waste them."

Deliberately he walked along beside the two returning players and Linda saw that he meant the conversation to continue into the drawing room where Marvin could be neatly included in it. He could manage this better than she, in her present frame of mind, so she dropped behind them and made a pretence of arranging the magazines on the central table. She heard several voices, Marvin's deep booming heartiness among them. Then the bidding started with renewed zest and in a moment her husband rejoined her.

"Pratt fell for it," he whispered. "That worked marvelously! Evidently tennis is his meat. Now listen, Binks. You speak to them a moment and then I'll go upstairs with you and we can talk for a little while. Then when I come down you must lock the door behind me. If you're frightened for any reason—or no reason—yell like blazes and keep on yelling. But I'm sure you won't be. If Statlander is the man he must be sure by now that he's safe and all he'll want is for things to keep on as they have been so he can get away without any trouble. A thousand to one he's sleeping the sleep of the just."

"He's the only one now that we have to persuade to stay," Linda's mind had strayed under those admonitions. She wanted only to get to bed and she realized that there was such a thing as being too tired to be afraid.

"Yes. And I can manage him on the business angle, I'm sure. So get this over with, sweetheart, and we'll go up together."

Aviation supremacy came to Amy Johnson, when she piloted her little plane into Capetown, 10 hours ahead of the London-Capetown record established by her husband, Capt. James A. Mollison. She had flown alone on the 6,200-mile stretch leading over the Sahara desert and the wilds of Africa, to make the new record. She is shown above in the cockpit of her plane shortly after her return to London.

Another picture showing the East Lancashire Regiment marching through Shanghai's snow-covered streets. The "Rugs" sign would seem appropriate.

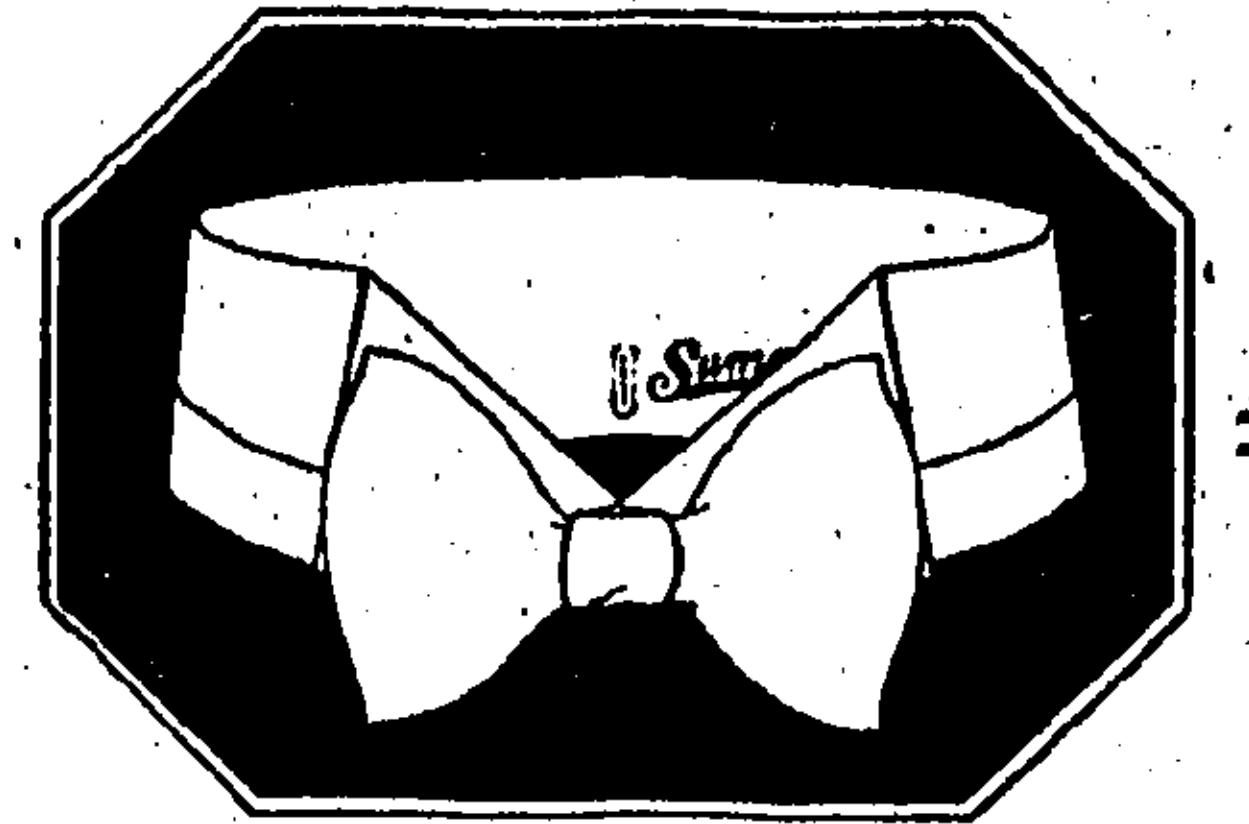

Mr. C. T. Peter Yoh, left, Managing Director of the Bank of Kiangnan standing beside his new Chrysler Six Convertible coupe. This sport model personal car retains its original appearance, as it left the Chrysler factory, despite the fact that the car was in the workshops of the Mark L. Moody company for three months, undergoing a thorough bullet-proofing. This car is the first bullet-proof convertible coupe in Shanghai and probably one of very few in the entire world. When closed, the car is bullet-proof from every angle, including the top.

Vavara Gergonloff, above, 50-year-old mother of Dr. Paul Gergonloff, has been arrested in Russia charged with stealing collected grain, an offense punishable by death. Dr. Gergonloff was executed for assassinating President Denker of France.

Dr. Clemente Vasquez Bello, above, president of the Cuban Senate and an aspirant for the presidency in the 1924 election, was one of four prominent members of the Opposition party assassinated in Havana. Martial law was declared in the city for protection against reprisals.

To-day's approved dress collar style—a collar with broad, square-cut wings set well apart—is interpreted in a most distinguished manner by each of the four Summit shapes. Each has subtle differences in the angle of the wings, the width of the opening, the depth of the band . . . the complete range making it a simple matter to select a dress collar which is an individual expression of correct style.

FRENCH CABINET
RESIGNSSOCIALIST SUPPORT
FAILS PREMIER

Paris, Jan. 28.
 The French Government has been defeated by 390 votes to 193, and is resigning.

The defeat occurred after an all-night sitting on the question of increasing direct taxation by 5 per cent, a motion which had already been turned down by the Finance Commission.

The Premier, M. Paul Boncour, aware of the danger, made it a question of confidence and gave the Left majority the alternative of accepting the main lines of the Government's plan of which this article was the corner-stone or turning out the Government.

M. Herriot, former Premier, declared that the Radicals would vote for the Government in order to save the Republic, but M.
 Blum announced that the Socialists could not support the Government on this point as it meant the sacrifice of Socialist principles.

The debate was orderly and colourless until the vital moment was reached at 6 a.m.

Two previous votes of confidence had been taken in which the Government gained a majority of about 100 votes on non-vital issues of the Commission's Finance Bill. Nevertheless the defeat was not unexpected, for the Premier was in a dilemma. It was felt that if the Government put a question of confidence upon any of the vital Articles of the Bill, such as the suppression of bearer securities, the reduction of State salaries by five per cent, and an increase in the income tax, it would be defeated, while if it refrained it would be discredited for not practising what it preached.

Empty Coffers.

The crisis occurred four days before the end of the month when the Treasury coffers will be empty. It will be impossible to raise money in time.

The defeat is due to the split between the two wings of the Government's supporters, but when the Government ultimately refused to bend completely to the will of the Socialists, a split was inevitable.

Later.
 President LeBrun took the unusual course of consulting the Premier M. Paul Boncour, for three quarters of an hour after the other Ministers had left the Elysee this morning in order to arrange for the sanctioning of a monthly vote on account for January 31, as the coffers are empty.
 It is feared that this is constitutionally possible as it comes under the heading of current affairs and the Senate and Chamber of Deputies can accomplish the necessary formalities in time even if the new Ministry is not formed by January 31.—Reuter.

BAD ECONOMICS

The United States, like many other countries, is finding out to its cost that wage-cutting in the name of economy, is only serving to aggravate the unemployment problem. Recent statistics show that wage rates which have been built up over a long period of time have been ruthlessly lowered in the past three years, with the result that millions of workers have been forced to adjust their living standards upon a lower level. The loss in wages and salaries resulting from unemployment and wage reductions for the past two years amounted to over seven millions sterling. The effects of this destruction of such vast buying power can very well be imagined. The argument upon which wage reduction is mainly based is that the cost of manufactured goods will be reduced, the price of commodities will be less, and, as a result, more goods will be sold. But statistics of big industries in which wages have fallen do not support that theory. It is, indeed, a strange economic philosophy which permits the assumption that buying power can be stimulated and made more active through a destruction of the power to purchase. How can more goods be sold when people are compelled to buy less? How can the market for the sale of goods consume and use more when the purchasing power of those who constitute the market is destroyed. Obviously, such an economic theory is unsound and contradictory. It will only be when an enlarged buying power is placed in the hands of the people that prosperity will return. The less demand there is for manufactured goods, the fewer workers will be employed. There can be no demand for manufactured goods where there is no market. There can be no market when those who constitute the market are unable to buy. But an increase of buying power will not alone suffice. It must be accompanied by the creation of jobs for idle men and women. This can be accomplished through a better allocation of the amount of work available among those who are able and willing to work. Society must determine whether it will be menaced by a permanent army of unemployed created by a mechanised industry, or whether, through better planning, the amount of work available is to be more equitably distributed. This is the real problem which has grown out of machine-equipped industry and mass production.

The Irish Problem

Mr. de Valera has secured a triumph frankly astonishing to his adversaries and it is evident

now that he chose the time for the Dissolution with astute foresight. The result means two things, at least, that the economic war will continue and that the social revolution taking shape in the Irish Free State will become intensified. It is now several months since Mr. de Valera trailed the coat of unpaid Irish land annuities for Great Britain to tread on. Since then both countries have been busy with the tariff war. But whereas Great Britain has been concerned merely to wield an economic bludgeon in an effort to compel payment, Mr. de Valera has been deliberately using the tariff to transform the whole basis of Irish life. Hitherto Ireland has been content to use its natural resources to build up an abundance of the food-stuffs it is so well fitted to produce and to export them to England, in return for manufactured articles. The Free State has been, and to a decreasing extent still is, an exporter of cattle, pigs, poultry and butter, and an importer of boots, clothing, coal, machinery and so forth. It was the aim of Mr. William Cosgrave's party to develop and improve Irish productivity along these traditional lines—to raise more and better bacon, eggs, cattle and horses—with a view to bigger and better exports—and imports—thus bringing about a higher standard of living. Mr. Eamon de Valera's political philosophy has an entirely different focus. Everything that the Free State has been buying abroad Mr. de Valera would have it produced at home. Wheat, for instance, which the Irish farmer has been in the habit of importing because he thought it paid better to leave his land under grass, is to be grown on a large enough scale to provide all the bread the country needs—always supposing the climate will oblige. Similarly, Irish citizens will be tarried into wearing Irish clothes, eating Irish sugar and eschewing foreign goods in every possible direction. His policy seems to have received Ireland's approval. Nevertheless, the cards are not all in favour of Mr. de Valera. He is bound to find that in the long run economic nationalism does not pay—that in fact it is better to be on good terms with your neighbour and freely exchange the things you are best fitted to produce for the things he is best able to supply, than to waste time and energy trying to become self-sufficient.

Peace-Making

Whatever the final outcome, the League's handling of the Manchuria dispute has made clear one thing, that peace cannot be petrified. Its stability must come from movement, from progressive adjustments required to maintain justice in a changing world. The peace treaties made some provision for such readjustments. Article 19 of the League Covenant sets up methods for revision of treaties. This machinery for positive and continuing peace-making is far from perfect. But it is too advanced for nationalist thinking. Consequently the nations so far have refused to use it. And in the last fifteen months they have shown in Manchuria that they are unwilling to use the more drastic sections of the merely negative peace machinery. The recent recognition of that fact has damped many hopes. Others have been chilled by the inability of governments so far to agree upon any general disarmament. In addition the nations have made less progress than had been expected in the amelioration of economic strife and the lowering of trade barriers. Indeed, there has been retrogression on this score and a tendency to divide the world into ever tighter trade compartments during recent months. This view should not engender fear. It should galvanize the peoples of the world into more earnest and timely efforts to overcome the dangers now disclosed. Humanity commands ample supplies of the intelligence and good will required. The question is whether it will become sufficiently aroused to use them, or drift on the currents of apathy and selfishness which have hitherto always carried it into war.

BERNARD SHAW'S QUEST OF THE OTHER WONDERS

By ROBERT LYND

Mr. Bernard Shaw is now out on a voyage round the world at the age of 76. In the 18th century Dr. Johnson made a tour of Scotland at the age of 62. Dr. Johnson has been regarded ever since as a marvellous old man with almost superhuman powers of endurance, while Mr. Shaw's enterprise at much greater age creates little more astonishment than if he had gone for a week-end to Brighton.

Can it be that it is easier to go round the world to-day than it was to go as far as Skye in the second half of the 18th century? Or is it that Englishmen exaggerated the discomforts and difficulties of Scotland before they discovered what excellent shooting was to be had there? Dr. Johnson would certainly have to perform a greater feat to-day to win so much praise.

You Can't Surprise Us Now

Possibly, the invention of the train, the motor-car and the aeroplane has made it more difficult to surprise our neighbours by merely travelling. In an age in which solitary women fly through the air to the ends of the earth it does not seem to require any out-of-the-way adventurousness to go to a steamer and be borne from sunny port to sunny port with such an abundance of good food that one could easily occupy one's entire time with eating. Professor Piccard's voyage among the snows of the upper air in his balloon makes even a voyage to the South Seas a prosaic achievement by comparison.

Apart from this, we expect men to-day to go on being lively till a much greater age than was usual in previous centuries. We are mildly astonished when a Turk, claiming to be 166 years old, turns globe-trotter, and even when he tells us how he fought in a battle against the Russians when he was only 100. But we are gradually getting accustomed to the notion that it is perfectly natural for anybody who has not passed his 90th year to behave like a young man in the twenties, playing violent games, driving fast cars, and climbing the Alps before breakfast.

Restlessness of Modern Age

"I don't believe in letting my age stand between me and anything I want to do," said a woman of 92 the other day having crossed the Atlantic for the first time; and that sentence and that exploit seem to represent a growing tendency in modern old age, or what used to be called old age.

We talk about the restlessness of modern youth. But what about the restlessness of modern septuagenarianism, octogenarianism and nonagenarianism? The old people of to-day seem to have lost their gift for settling down. Their grandfathers and grandmothers, if they had foreseen it, would have thought them positively flighty. Why, only a month ago Sir Filinders Petrie set off at the age of 80 for Gaza, with the intention of living seven months in the desert, though his doctor had ordered him to remain in bed till he had recovered from a chill.

Think of the Example

It is questionable whether this headstrongness and this craving

for distant places afford the best possible example to the younger generation. One must not judge the present age, however, by the standards of its predecessors. Everything is changing, and young and old alike are changing with it.

I have myself comparatively little of this craving for distant places. I do not like what I hear about them, and the news about them in the papers gets worse every day. Most of them seem to be bankrupt, and all of them seem to be in an extraordinarily bad temper. What a haven of peace in comparison is St. Ives, with its brood of fishingsmacks in the harbour and in the distance the lime-white gannets closing their black-tipped wings as they plunge into the stormy waves! How charming, for that matter, to stand in Ken Wood and watch a gold-crested wren playing like a humming bird among the brambles!

Temperamentally, I suppose, I am a man who would rather see one place a hundred times than a hundred places once. I like being at places, but I do not much like going to places. Most people, when they fall in love with a strange scene, say: "We must come back here again," but they do not mean it in their hearts. Next year the craving for new places is too strong for them, and they go somewhere else. I, on the contrary, when I say: "We must come back here again," really mean what I say. I would rather go back to the West Coast of Scotland than visit Manchukuo.

I would rather go back to Florence and Rome than see all Africa, from the Cape to Cairo. Nothing would appal me more than to be compelled to accept an invitation to travel round the world. I would rather spend the time in Wiltshire. I sincerely hope I shall not have set eyes on most of the globe before I die.

A World Too Big For Me

It is a good world, but there is too much of it for a man to be able to get accustomed to in one life-time.

Prejudiced though I am against travel, however, and looking on large mountains, eternal snows, and such things with dislike, I cannot help admiring the heroic optimism with which Mr. Shaw sets out to see a world which at the age of 76 he still believes to be worth seeing. Up till now he has not thought America itself worth seeing, but now he is going to look for an hour or two even at America. I doubt whether any man of letters of equal eminence ever made a journey round the globe at the age of 76. Perhaps Mr. Shaw thought it just as well, some time in his life, to see as much as possible of that extraordinary world of which he is the eighth wonder.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY

IT IS A HARD AND NICE SUBJECT FOR A MAN TO WRITE OF HIMSELF: IT GRATES HIS OWN HEART TO SAY ANYTHING OF DISPARAGEMENT, AND THIS READER'S EARS TO HEAR ANYTHING OF PRAISE FROM HIM.—Cowley.

"Somebody called up and wanted to rent a baby to take part in his New Year's party."

The Very Idea!

NEW YEAR RITES

By Uncle Edward Kelly.
It was the most exclamatory New Year we have ever spent.

In order to frighten away some evil spirits we had hidden in a white label bottle, someone lot off a string of crackers outside our bedroom door at 4 a.m. It completely ruined the spirit-ite, and our reputation.

We couldn't sleep again, so we changed out of our pyjamas and spent the rest of the night huddled over the radiator.

There are two classes of people who let off crackers outside bedroom windows at 4 a.m. Those who need chloroforming and those who need chloroforming.

Pagan rites, we call it.

Speaking of rites, I have a friend named Wright. Wright never writes with his right hand. He's left handed.

This may be all right for some people, but what we want to know is why should Wright be wrong when he's Wright? And if Wright were right instead of left why should he be wrong? When is Wright right? When he writes with his right or with his left? Sounds funny to us.

What with all this noise going on, we think we will insist that next new year silencers be fitted to the exhausts of all crackers. Then the Chinese can make as much noise as a St. Pat's day procession, and we won't hear them.

And now, children, we must leave you. There is so much noise going on outside our window that we can't hear ourself write.

And, besides, Peto has some evil spirits in his room.

So Bunky-doo, little ones, bunnkydoo, while Uncle Eddie goes out and buys himself a nice long string of bombs.

This is ZBW closing down. You have just been listening to a running commentary on Chinese New Year. The noise in the background was the voice of the commentator. G-o-o-d-night, listeners, g-o-o-d-night.

SNAKES ALIVE.

A snake fancier of no mean order, our ears cocked up when we heard that one of Dr. Herklot's little pets had had an accident. We went to extend our condolences.

"The patient," said Dr. Herklot, "is going on as well as can be expected."

We could not ask whether he had turned the corner, as he had already turned about eight. The patient is a python, and if it had not been for Dr. Herklot's he would probably be an ex-python. We saw him yesterday in his specially heated ward under the doctor's bed.

He became a patient on Thursday. One of his companions, who, we understand, has something of a reputation for anti-social conduct, bit him right along the dotted line, though whether this misdemeanour was prompted by a whimsical appetite or should be consigned to the category of crime passionnel is still uncertain. At any rate, there was a 12ft. reticulated python in danger of becoming a series of instants, so Dr. Herklot put 88 stitches in the patient's damaged bodywork. We would have given him the grapes we took up but he threatened to get friendly so we ate 'em ourselves.

SPECTATOR'S JITTER.

Several "incidents" in which spectators have been told to stand in the corner have been reported from Fanling, where the interport golf tournament is taking place.

In one instance a member of the gallery shouted "Go on" as a player's ball bounded across the green. It has not been stated where the player told the member of the gallery to go.

Yesterday a spectator moved as a competitor was addressing his ball. The latter showed that he could also address a spectator.

(Future golfing phrase: "He hits a long spectator.")

Well, these gallery-ites may have deserved censure, but it must be remembered that the soul of a spectator is exceedingly intricate, a positive labyrinth of fragile emotions, repressions, and other psychological bric-a-brac.

There was a period when we ourselves suffered agonies from "Spectator's Jitter" (Galleryitis Dithorana), a complaint which consists of an irresistible desire to shout some comment which is always the wrong one.

We were cured, however. It was on the green. He needed a four-footer for a half and a 3 and 2. We could see his stance was all wrong. The three Kelly principles were forgotten. We did not know how to contain ourselves. We didn't. Neither did he. When we woke up in the infirmary we swore we'd never help him again. The bad-tempered cuss!

JUBILEE ROAD MURDER

CRIMINAL SESSIONS TRIAL OPENS

SINGLET CLUE

An allegation that three men were concerned in the murder of Lam Kam-chuen, at Victoria Road on September 27th last, was made by the Crown when the trial opened at the Criminal Sessions this morning, before Mr. Justice Wood and a jury, of Chan Kau, alias Chan Sam, who appeared on the capital charge.

In a previous trial, the murdered man's foster-father was acquitted on a charge of procuring the murder.

At to-day's trial, Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, with Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown, while Mr. R. C. H. Lim (instructed by Mr. F. X. d'Almada, snr.) represented the prisoner.

The jury was composed of the following:—Messrs. T. R. Parsons (foreman), F. P. Ribeiro, J. Flinn, A. J. Palmer, G. von Ehren, G. R. Payne and E. C. Fincher.

CASE FOR CROWN

Opening the case for the Crown, Mr. Fraser said that Lam Kam-chuen, the murdered man, was the son or adopted son of Lam Kam-shek who came to Hongkong from Tong Hang village, in the Sun Wai district, some years ago, and now occupies a position in an Imports and Exports shop in Connaught Road Central. He was also interested in the business known as the Man Hing Cheung tailors' shop, of Queen's Road Central. The deceased young man was about 27 years of age and lived with his father who had supported him for the past seventeen years. The man lived in the Man Hing Cheung shop, but he acquired bad habits, got into bad company, was an opium smoker and a gambler.

The relations between the father and son were apparently fairly normal, but on Confucius' Birthday last year, September 27, the body of Lam Kam-chuen was found in Victoria Road, otherwise known as Jubilee Road.

EUROPEAN'S DISCOVERY

A lamp-lighter, walking from Aberdeen about midnight, saw the body but said nothing about it. At 6.45 on the morning of the 28th, a European gentleman, motoring along the road, also saw the body and made a report to the police.

The victim was found to have been stabbed. There were bruises on the head and fissures in the skull compatible with the use of a large stone. A rope, used as a gag, was tied over the mouth.

No one knew who the victim was at that time. On the body was a singlet bearing the three characters "Lam Pak Hong" and by means of these characters the identity of the dead man was established. Sometime later, Chan Kau, the prisoner, was arrested. He was detained and cautioned, and, in answer to the man who arrested him, he said "No; not so."

OBJECTION RAISED

In consequence of their enquiries, the police charged Chan Kau on November 9 and he made a statement.

At this point, Mr. Lim objected to the statement being read before it was proved.

Mr. Fraser said the statement would be proved in evidence.

At that time, the police were not sure that they had arrested the right man and held an identification parade, attended by the folks of a shop which deceased had visited. The prisoner was known to those folks, and the purpose of the parade was to discover whether they had the right man. They knew his name was Chan Kau, but they wanted to make sure that that was the man they held in custody.

The parade proved nothing and was not important to the jury. After the parade, accused asked if he might make a voluntary statement. He was told that he might. That statement would be produced in evidence, and on it a great deal depended.

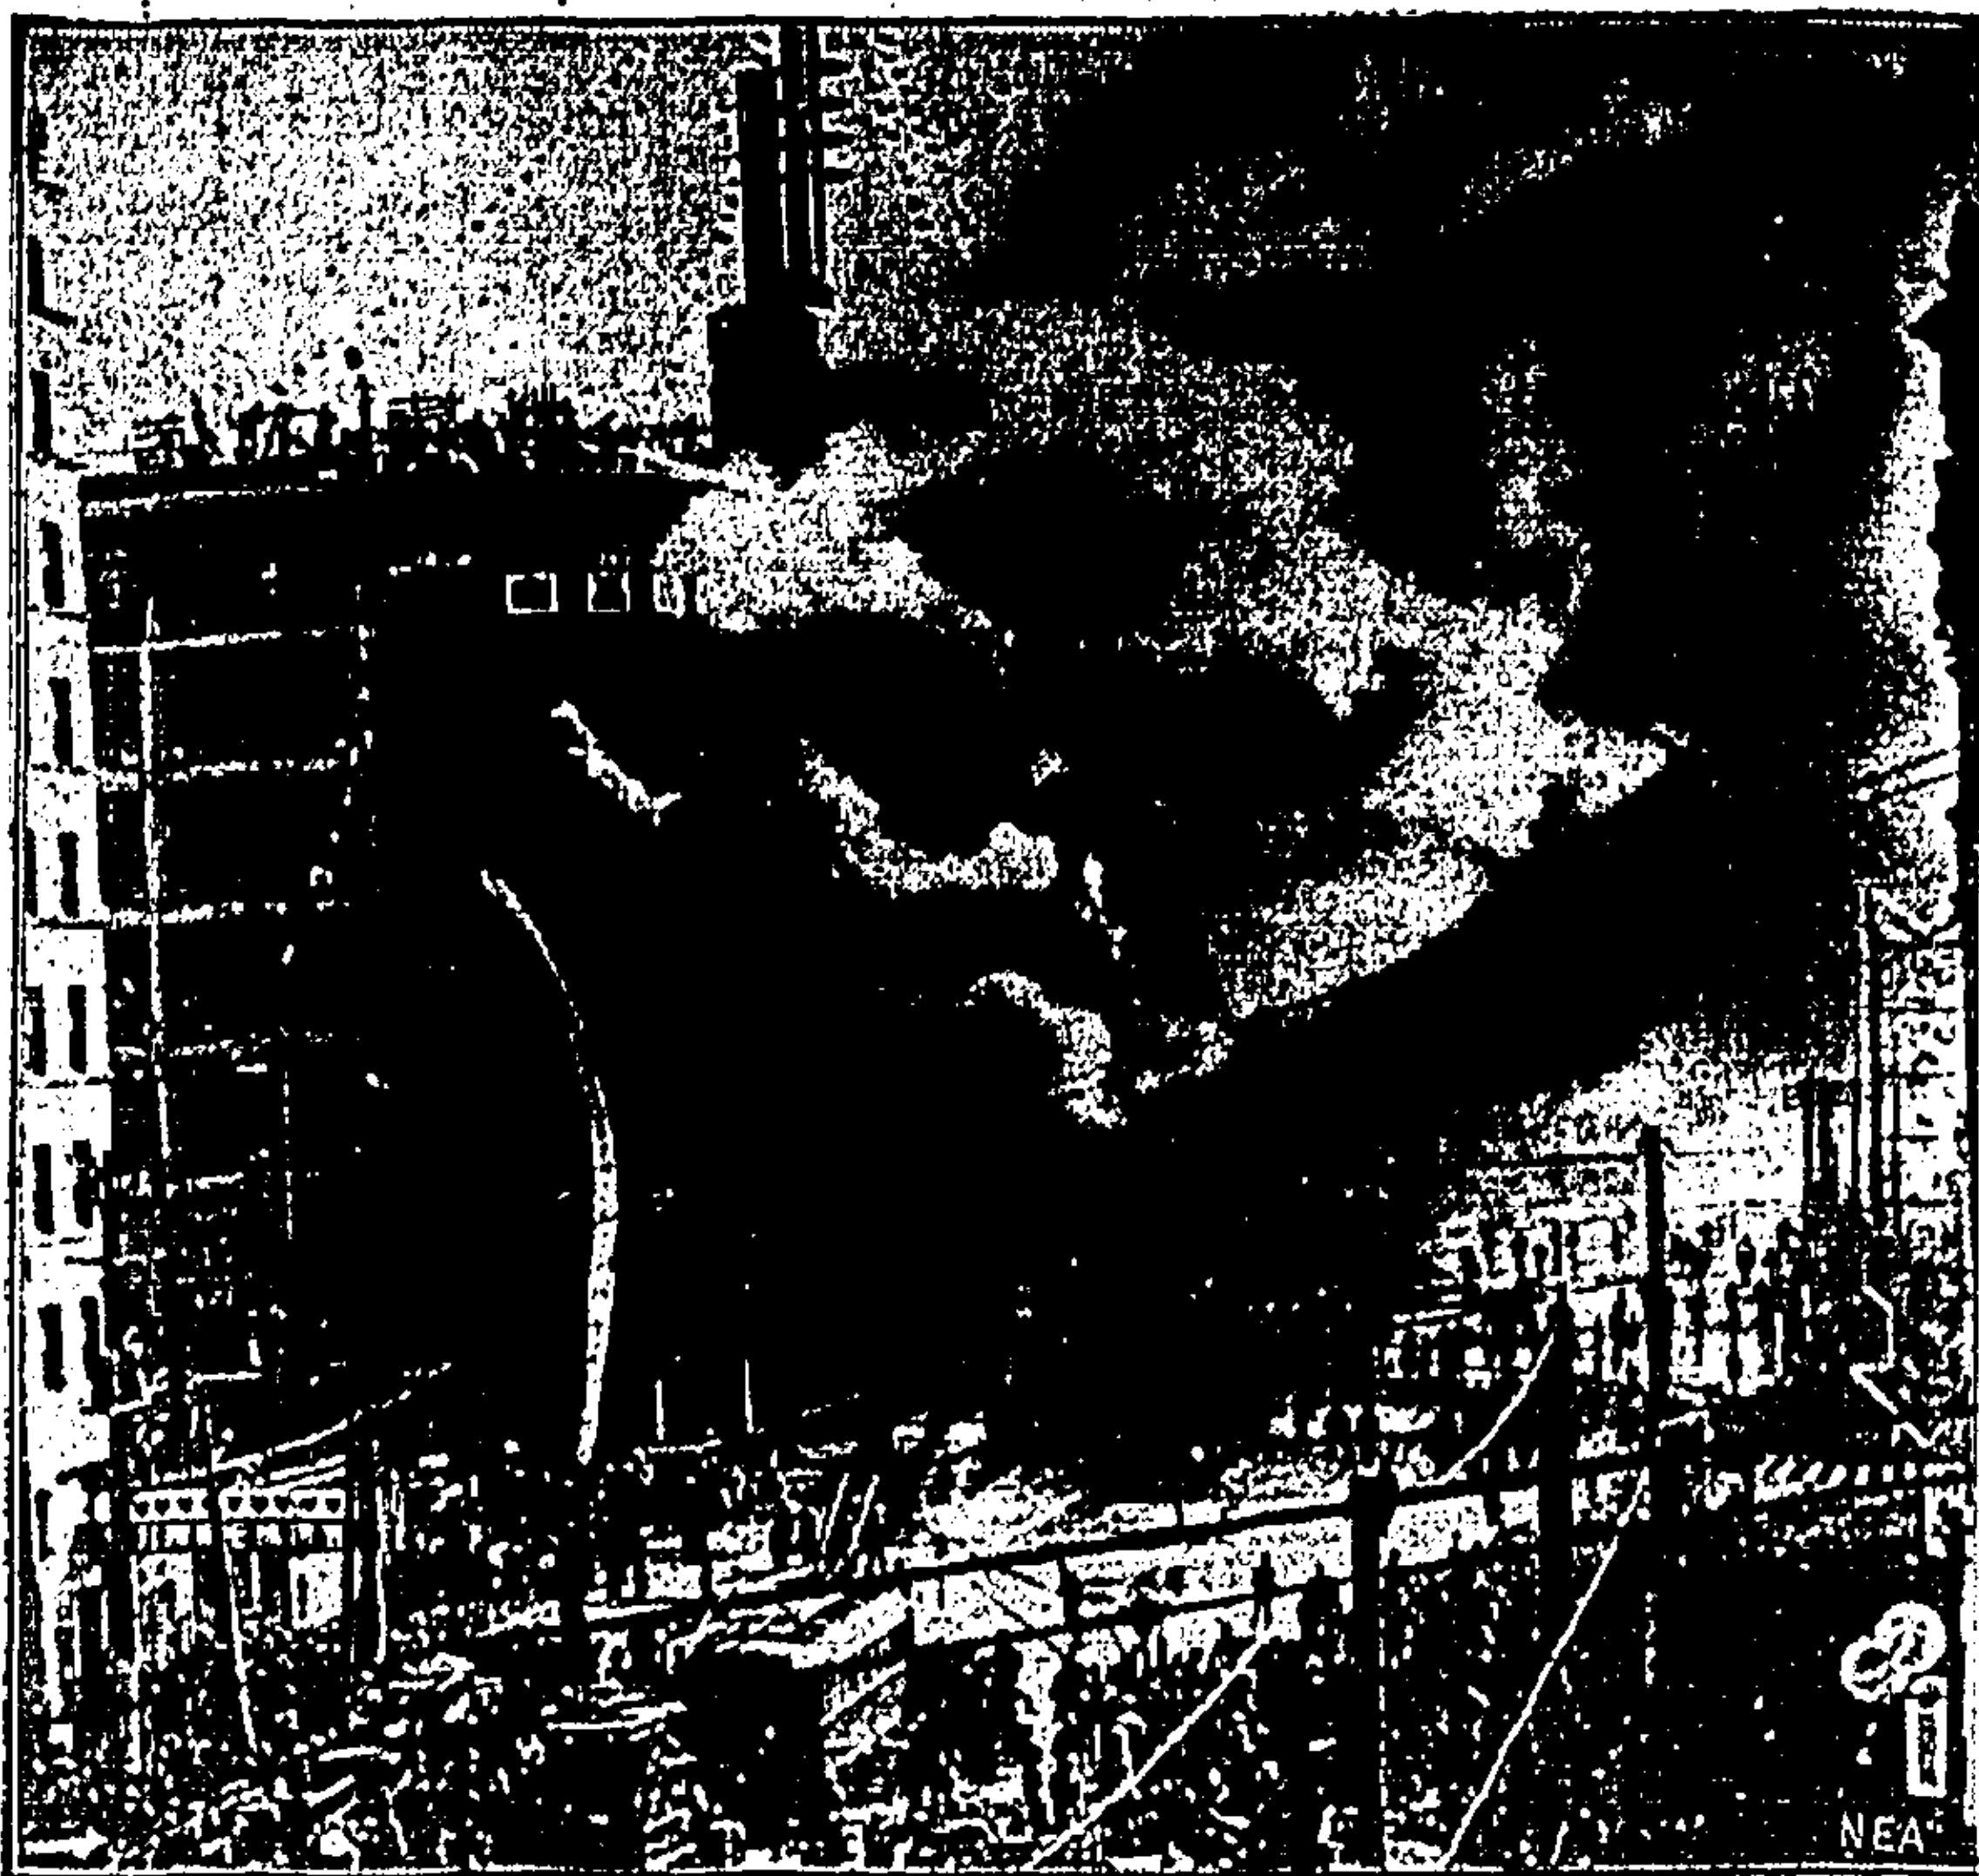

THE MOTIVE

As to motive, the murder was, it was alleged, committed by the accused, by a relative of deceased, and a street barber.

His Lordship interrupted, pointing out that as the evidence had been objected to, he did not think counsel should refer to the motive in his opening.

Three people went on Mr. Fraser, frequented the shop, two besides deceased. They were Lam Yate, the street barber and the accused. On the evening before the murder, accused called at the Man Hing Cheung, and the barber and the accused left at 6.30 p.m.

The prosecution would not put before the jury facts from which they

Ten persons were killed, 100 seriously injured, when fire swept a Tokyo department store at the height of the holiday shopping rush. Scores were trapped on the roof of the building and many leaped in panic to the street. The picture shows at the left a canopy rescue chute being raised to bring down those trapped on the upper floors and roof.

PRINCE MARRIES HANDMAID

ROMANTIC LOVE AFFAIR IN GERMANY

Berlin, Jan. 23.

The climax to one of the most romantic love-affairs of recent times took place to-day in the little town of Stolberg, in the southern Harz Mountains, when the scion of one of Germany's most ancient princely houses, Prince Wolf Heinrich of Stolberg, was joined in wedlock to Fraulein Irma Erfert, daughter of a local town-clerk and former handmaid to the Prince's mother.

Of the bridegroom's family, only his sister, Princess Imagina, attended the wedding while the other members of the family demonstrated their disapproval by staying away.

Inhabitants of the town of Stolberg, however, showed their sympathy with the Prince's democratic views by making the day one of general rejoicing which ended in a torchlight procession to the castle, where the happy groom acted as host to the entire town. The couple subsequently left on a wedding tour to Italy.

The Prince, who, though only 29 years old, is the head of the House of Stolberg, announced that he will dissolve the princely household and henceforth live as a private citizen.

would be asked to draw the inference that on that evening Chan Kau, Lam Fat, and Lam Fuk-lun met somewhere away from the shop and proceeded to the place where the crime was committed. The trial is proceeding.

In particular, Otis Skinner, as Hal, the Beggar, gives a remarkably finished performance, being ably supported by a talented cast. A film not to be missed.

EIGHT THOUSAND YEARS AGO

RELICS UNCOVERED IN HUGE MOUND

Chicago, Jan. 23.

An expedition by the University of Chicago and the Oriental Institute has resulted in the finding of a village where men lived 80 centuries before Christ, it was revealed to-day.

By digging into a huge mound, the relics of a people who existed 8,000 years ago were uncovered. They lived in a little Stone Age village not far from where the Persians, hundreds of years later, built their magnificent block marble palaces in Persepolis, the ancient capital.

These palaces, in which immense treasure was found after the Macedonian conquest, were those of the legend which tells of Alexander setting fire to them with his own hand at the instigation of the courtesan, Thais, in 331 B.C.—Reuter.

FOUR STOWAWAYS FINED

STOLE TRIP FROM MAURITIUS

Seven Chinese were brought before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with stowing away on the s.s. Cape St. Francis from Mauritius to Hongkong.

Sergeant Smith, who prosecuted, said the defendants were discovered four days after the ship had left Mauritius. They were mixing with the passengers.

A fine of $50, or one month, was imposed on each case.

PAWNBROKER IN TROUBLE

GAVE FOUR DOLLARS FOR $400 RING

A diamond ring valued at $400, after being stolen from a Chinese broker, was found by the police in a Hollywood Road pawnshop where it had been disposed of for $4.

The disparity in prices was the subject of police comment when they charged Lam-Pak-ming, assistant accountant of the Chiu Loong, the pawnshop concerned, with failing to detain a small boy who offered him the ring, as required by law where the circumstances were obviously suspicious.

Det. Sergeant Pitches stated that the ring was recently missed by its owner—a broker who lives at 118, Lockhart Road, Wanchai. Suspicion was attached to a small boy living on the same floor, who was seen to enter the broker's room, and when the police were brought in, he confessed and took them to the Chiu Loong pawnshop where the article was found to have been pawned for a fraction of its value.

The pawnbroker was fined $100. The boy was bound over in a sum of $50. The case was before Mr. Schofield.

ROBBERS BIND CASHIER

ROBBERY ATTEMPT FAILS

While Li Ping-chan, cashier in a wood fuel store at 189B, Reclamation Street, Yau-mat, was going through his books yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, a knock sounded at the door, and he admitted two men, the first of whom said he wished to make a purchase. Close on their heels pressed third customer, who, as soon as he had entered, quickly closed the door after him.

An attempt to rob then became apparent. The three so-called customers threw the cashier to the ground, but before he fainted, presumably with fright, he had yelled out an alarm.

On coming to out of his swoon, the cashier found that his wrists had been tied together, but of the robbers there was no sign. His first thought on freeing himself was to investigate the safe, which he found intact, although showing evidence of an attempt having been made on it.

SEVERE QUAKE IN KANSU

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND DAMAGE

Despatches from Chinese sources in Kansu tell of considerable damage done by the recent earthquake in that province. The shocks were very severe at Chuehuan, Yumen, Tingshin and Kaotai in north Kansu, causing considerable loss of life and much damage. Many houses collapsed completely.

General Ma Chung-yin, the local military commander, has sent envoys to investigate the extent of the damage and to devise ways and means of helping the stricken inhabitants of those towns. The loss in north Kansu is estimated roughly at ten million dollars.

CRICKET FEATURES

MANY EXCELLENT PERFORMANCES

IN FOUR LEAGUE ENCOUNTERS

Quite a number of useful performances with bat and ball featured the four matches in Division 2 of the cricket league on Saturday.

Outright decisions were reached in all encounters, the results being:

H.K.C.C. 183 for 7 dec beat Recreio 104 by 79 runs.
K.C.C. 101 for 1 beat R.A. 77 by nine wickets.
R.E. and B. 128 for 7 beat Navy 44 by seven wickets.
Police 168 beat University 135 by three wickets.

A partnership of 111 for the second wicket made certain a winning score for the Hongkong Club, and the debacle of the Recreio was complete when five bowlers took part in their dismissal for 104.

H. Overy was devastating with the ball for the Kowloon Cricket Club, his seven Artillery victims being obtained for 25 runs. Confident batting by C. I. Stapleton, who made his first half century in local cricket this season, and Norman Mackay, gave the Peninsula team a comfortable win.

Lieut. Anstruther shone with a fine all round display against the Navy, firstly taking four wickets for ten runs, and following it up by scoring 42 not out.

E. R. Wynne smote the University bowling high and low to put a rapid 68 against his name and five points in the Police league record. The Varsity attack was but mediocre, and never looked good enough to dismiss the Police for less than 135.

HONGKONG RUGBY TEAM WIN AGAIN

TOO GOOD FOR THE U.S. MARINES

Shanghai, Jan. 28. Playing in sunny weather and before a large crowd the Hongkong Rugby Interport players this afternoon swamped the formidable United States Marines by sixteen points to three.

The game was colourless, the visitors showing marked superiority, and the issue was never in doubt.

In the first three minutes Hongkong scored a try through G. P. Lammer, D. McLellan converting from a difficult angle. At half time the score was five points to nil in favour of Hongkong.

Immediately after the resumption, M. W. Turner scored a try which was not converted. Later J. P. Whitham scored a try, but this also was not converted. Then near the close of the match Dr. J. A. R. Solby went through to score underneath the post in a scramble. McLellan made no mistake and converted.

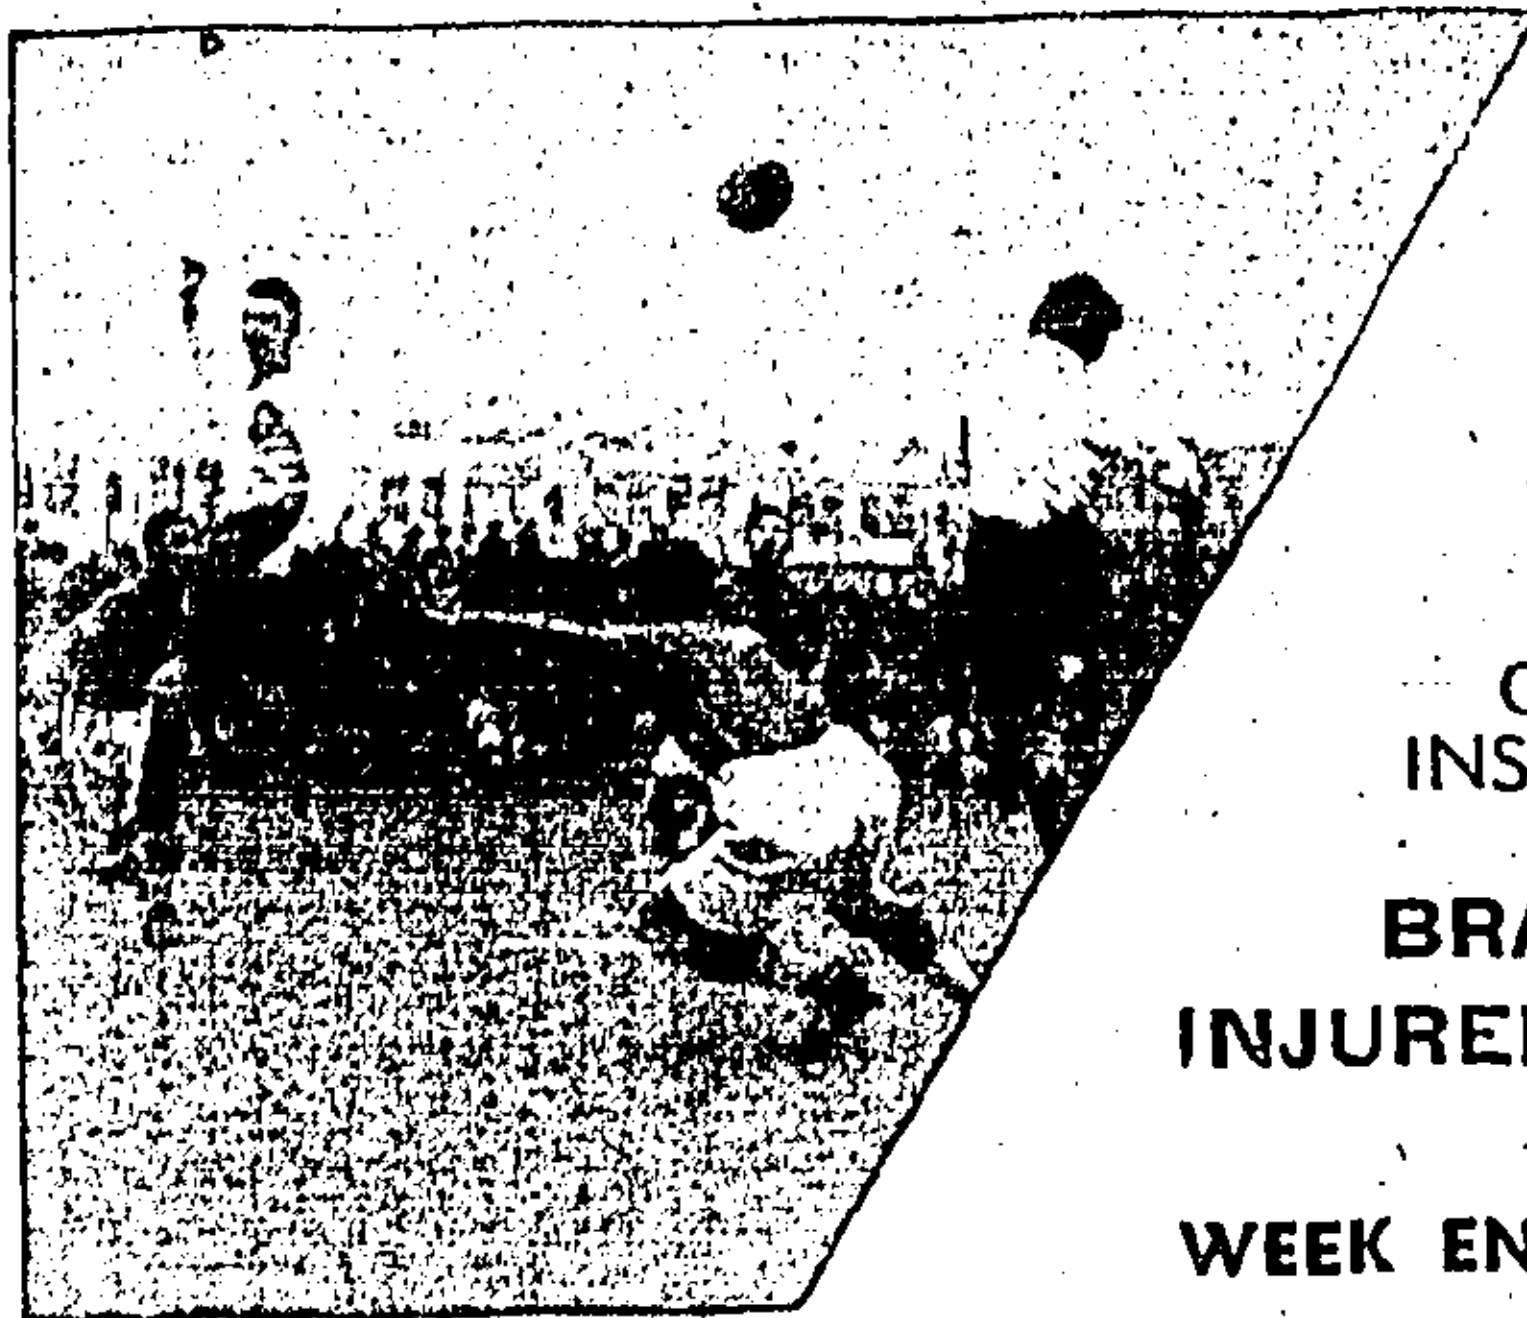

One minute from time the Marines scored a try through their captain, J. H. Slusser. The effort however, was unconverted.

The outstanding players for Hongkong were G. P. Lammer, J. P. Whitham and Dr. J. A. R. Solby, the visiting captain.—Router.

WEEK END SPORTS COMMENTS BY "VERITAS"

TWO INCIDENTS IN—

THERE was something very reactionary about the football displayed by Shanghai against the Combined Chinese on Saturday, and this factor contributed more than anything else to their defeat by five goals to two.

AFTER their sparkling show on Thursday, the visitors appeared very tired, lethargic, and suffering from football anaemia. This was not to be wondered at, and personally I thought they gave an astonishingly good account of themselves in view of the opposition and the fact that ten of the team had taken part in the gruelling Interport only 48 hours before.

THE game enjoyed several prominent features, some of which leave pleasant recollections, and others, not so pleasant.

AMONG the former was the entrancing play of the Chinese half backs and forwards in their movements towards goal, and the brave, but unavailing effort of Shanghai in the first quarter of an hour of the second half, to draw level.

ON the other hand the very questionable tactics of the Chinese left one with the impression that either they placed too much importance to the game, in which case their sense of perspective and the methods of its materialisation were all wrong, or that their ideas of sport and decent play were sadly lacking.

ONE can, perhaps, appreciate their desire to win. One can even understand that in the excitement of such a game technical faults are inevitable. But one cannot accept any explanation or conceive any extenuating circumstances for the flagrant breach of rules as displayed by Tam Kong-pak and other members of the Chinese eleven.

FOR one thing, there was no necessity for dirty tactics on their part. They indicated quite early in the game that they were clever enough footballers to beat Shanghai, and this fact only aggravated their offences. After Thursday's delightfully clean and sporting encounter, Saturday's game was at times fitted only to be ranked as a dog fight.

A PART from this unhappy feature and the consequent result of too much whistle, the game was both entertaining and exciting, with the Chinese worthy winners, even if the margin did somewhat flatter them.

THAT Ip Pak-wa, Fung King-cheung, Tam Kong-pak trio! Oh! What a different story there would have been to tell if they could have played in the Interport. They were dazzling and bewildering, with their inter-passing, and what shooting! Everyone of their five goals were the culmination of a movement conceived somewhere about the halfway line and were made apparent before the penalty line had been passed. It was good football and would have beaten a better team than Shanghai.

FUNG King-cheung showed that he is still the brainiest leader of the attack in local football. His long swinging passes to the wings were gems and made easy the labours of Cheng Shui-hong and Chan Kwong-lu.

MANY spectators were puzzled when the Chinese were seen to take the field with twelve players and line up with Leung Wing-chui and Tong Kwan in the left half position. Mr. Mok Hing went across to Tong

Kwan, and putting his arm around his shoulders spoke in a confidential way to him, but it was Leung who eventually ran off the field to leave Tong Kwan to play a very fine game.

TONG Kwan gave Keats very little rope, and when he wasn't upsetting the clever Shanghai winger, Lau Mau was, Keats appeared annoyed at Lau's close attention, which at times appeared a little too rigorous and vigorous.

Once in the first half, when Lau Mau turned round to appeal to the referee, but the official was out of hearing.

BUT it was from Lam Yuk-ying that the finest half back play of the afternoon came. The Chinese centre half was exceptionally good, and only figured prominently in breaking up the Shanghai attacks in their early stages, but kept his forwards on the move with splendid openings.

WITH Li Tin-sang and Lau Mau on such good form, it can easily be appreciated how difficult was the task of the Shanghai forwards, but it is to their credit that they not only pierced that defence twice but kept it on tender hooks, and actually desperately defending for two long periods during the match.

UNFORTUNATELY for the Visitors, the attack was never permitted to settle down to the same as played in the Interport, and there was something very akin to their tactics and those of the Hongkong team on Thursday. There were quite a number of bright individual efforts, but very little cohesion. Chen and Jack were great workers, but Collett and the wingers were too well marked to turn their movements to account.

STANLEY Gash was obviously puzzled and perplexed by the elusiveness of the Chinese inside forwards, and although he spent all of the afternoon trying to work out their movements he was little the wiser at the end.

I thought May put up a remarkably good show and his was progressive football, which is the least one can say for it. Vance seemed very weary, and Turner appeared uneasy about Tam Kong Pak's doubtful tricks with feet, head and hands. Young, on the other hand, was in his element and emerged from his duels with Ip Pak-wa

SHANGHAI CAPTAIN HURT ON SATURDAY

Li Ning.

(By "VERITAS").

Bossuet.

SELECTED last Thursday to play for the Combined Services against Shanghai to-day, Seal, the Artillery and Interport outside left has, to the amazement of one and all, been dropped at the last minute, and Lieut. Hocquard of the Lincolns brought in to play on the left wing.

This is one of the most remarkable and unfair actions of which I have ever heard. Seal has apparently been kicked out because he failed in the Interport, and the Services selectors assuming that, because he played below his form in one match, he is bound to do so in another.

But even this is not the most important point. No matter how Seal played last Thursday, he had been nominated to appear on Monday, and only circumstances such as illness should keep him from playing. Seal was chosen on the form he had shown up to Thursday's match, and not consequent on that game. The selectors' latest action is extremely unreasonable.

SHANGHAI CHANGES.

Shanghai are making several changes in their team for this afternoon, all available reserves being brought in, including Boissere and Bossuet.

Unfortunately difficulty is being experienced in filling the right back position.

Li Ning, who was brought down as reserve back injured himself during the practice immediately after the team's arrival, and it seems very unlikely that he will be able to turn out.

Stanley Gash also suffered a slight injury on Saturday which will keep him out to-day, so that Voong has to be brought in at centre half.

Bossuet, who now reports that he has completely recovered from his leg injury, will be seen at inside right, whilst Boissere is displacing K. C. Chen at inside left.

Hay, who played such a good game on Saturday retains the right half position, although, in view of Li Ning's inability to play, Remedios may be brought into the side at the last minute.

THE TEAMS.

The Shanghai team, as selected up to this morning was:

Bradley; A. N. Othor and Turner; Hay, Voong and Collett; Keats, Bossuet, Vance, Boissere and Hughes.

The Combined Services side, which ends Baldry, his ex-Interport left winger operating at outside right, and Davoy preferred to Podmore at right half, has finally been selected as follows:—

Johnson; Allen and Mullane; Davey, Pardoe, and Robertson; Baldry, Rawson, Malpass, Ridley and Lt. Hocquard.

BOSSUET.

The reserves are: Ash, Podmore, Harris, Jones and Usher. The kick off is at 3 p.m., the match being played on the club ground, and will bring to a close the Interport programme.

To-night the Interport dinner is being held at the Peninsula Hotel, when the Telegraph Cup will be handed to Mr. Stanley Gash, the Shanghai captain.

MAMAK HOCKEY DISPUTES

RADIO LOSE AND PROTEST

INGOG'S MATCH ABANDONED

By "Bully-Off"

Of the three Mamak League hockey matches arranged for the week-end, two ended in dispute, and sequels are promised in each instance.

The Radio Sports Club, present champions, lost their first game of the season to the R.A.S.C., when Senior netted the only goal, but immediately after the match the Radio captain intimated he would protest against the biased decisions of one of the referees.

On Sunday, the Incognitos, who enjoy a clean record in the League, were playing a drawn match with St. Andrew's, when the game was abandoned by the referee six minutes made by spectators concerning one of the officials.

In the third encounter, the German Club sustained their eleventh defeat when they fell to the R.A.M.C. by four goals to two. The German players led by two clear goals at the interval, but the Medical men staged a fine recovery to score four times in the closing stages.

HONGKONG WIN GOLF INTERPORT

AMAZING DISPLAY AGAINST SHANGHAI

Hongkong yesterday won the triangular golf Interport, when they defeated Shanghai in the singles by six matches to nil.

The results were:

M. W. Budd (Hongkong) beat J. W. Harrison, 3 and 2.
L. E. Andrews (Hongkong) beat W. H. C. Huggett, 8 and 6.
O. E. C. Marton (Hongkong) beat D. Ward Smith, 10 and 9.
T. A. Pearce (Hongkong) beat T. S. M. Terrace, 9 and 8.
E. J. R. Mitchell (Hongkong) beat P. H. Prevot, 5 and 4.
A. E. Lisaman (Hongkong) beat A. V. Pettitt, 6 and 5.

The outstanding feature of the Budd-Harrison match was the Shanghai player's fine fighting finish. Budd was too good for him in the morning. After a rather shaky start which found him two down at the third, Budd played the steady type of golf which seems to lack incident, keeping well down the middle of the fairway with powerful drives, on to the green and down in two. Harrison was not so consistent and went in to tiffin five down.

Harrison endeavoured to keep up his warm pace and held out at the 32nd in birdie three, but Budd was with him this time and became dorney four. Harrison produced another birdie to win the thirty-third, but his fine fight was brought to an end on the next green, where he narrowly missed another long putt which would have given him his third successive birdie and the hole. The afternoon scores were:

Budd: 4 4 3 5 4 4 5 4 5 38.
Harrison: 4 4 3 3 4 4 4 4 6 38.
In.

Budd: 4 6 5 5 5 5 4 4 33.
Harrison: 5 5 3 3 4 4 4 4 28.

Andrews v. Huggett. Andrews made certain of his match in the morning when he played brilliant golf and finished eight up. Huggett struggled along in fairly good figures, but five birdies and an eagle and Andrews' all-round efficiency left him pretty helpless.

The scores tell the story:
Andrews: 5 4 4 3 5 4 4 3 5.
Huggett: 6 4 5 4 4 5 5 4 5.
Andrews: 5 4 4 4 4 3 6.
Huggett: 6 4 5 5 5 5 4 4 4.

Marton v. Ward Smith. Ward Smith made Marton fight in the morning, but was swamped in the afternoon when the Hongkong player produced some of the finest golf of the day. Marton was two down at the third and all square at the sixth and completed the morning round two up, after many changes of fortune.

Out: 3 4 4 4 4 4 3 4 5 35.
In: 6 3 5 3 5 3 4 4 30.
Pearce v. Terrace.

Pearce took the lead at the second hole and never lost it. He was always outdistancing his opponent, although using his buffy from most of the tees, and in an endeavour to keep up with him Terrace was inclined to press.

Out: 5 3 5 3 5 5 4 4 3 5.
In: 4 5 4 3 5 4 4 4 5 4.
Terrace

Out: 5 4 0 2 0 5 5 3 4.
In: 5 4 5 5 0 4 7 4 4.
Mitchell v. Prevot.

Mitchell was out in 40 and home in 38, while Prevot who knocked his opponent's ball into the hole on one of the greens had 80, coming in one down. Prevot squared at the 10th in the afternoon and the same close struggle which marked the morning play, seemed certain. But Prevot also good enough to go to Shanghai and retain the Interport flag.

IF Hongkong had any misgivings regarding the composition of the pack, they were very effectively offset by the brilliance of the men behind the scrum, where Whitham, Lam, and Selby excelled themselves. Another very happy feature of the locals' display was the place kicking of McLellan. For about a month, McLellan revealed a disconcerting lack of form in this direction, but in Shanghai he rose to the occasion and during the two games played, kicked magnificently.

HOCKEY

THERE seems to be something radically wrong with hockey in the Mamak League. Two important games during the week-end were marred by unpleasant incidents, which may have far-reaching results on the future of the league.

ON Saturday the Radio suffered their first defeat of the season, but apparently dissatisfied with one of the referees, have indicated their intention of protesting. Opinions regarding the right and fairness of such an appeal are bound to vary, and in any case this is not the paramount issue.

WHAT is of greater importance is that the objection is made against the referee. This is not the first time this year that dissatisfaction with officials of league games has been voiced, and when it is remembered that on Sunday, the Incognitos v. St. Andrew's game was abandoned because of some unfortunate remarks being addressed to the referee, the position would appear to be one of two things. Either the referees are incompetent or the clubs are not playing the game.

NOT so long ago, one of the clubs in the Mamak League seriously contemplated submitting a resolution to the officials protesting against the appointment of certain referees, and now comes these two latest incidents. The whole affair calls for a searching enquiry and a stop put to such unfortunate incidents, otherwise hockey among the Mamak clubs is in danger of deteriorating into ungoverned rankings.

AND what about the Mamak League fixtures? At the present time—which is half way through the season—there are several teams each with less than ten games played. Is there any chance of them fulfilling their fixture list? It would appear to be very doubtful. Surely the Mamak League executive are alive to the situation. It is not fair to the remainder of the clubs who are conscientiously endeavouring to play off their games, that a few should be allowed to treat the whole thing as a mere convenience. It is high time this, and other matters connected with the League received the attention of the organizers. For a competition of such importance and promise to deteriorate into a farce does not make happy contemplation.

MANILA BEAT SHANGHAI

On Saturday Shanghai and Manila played in the four-ball foursomes over 36 holes. In the morning the weather was bitterly cold, but at mid-day the sun appeared and play in the afternoon was quite pleasant. The greens were perfect but inclined to play a little too fast, and as a result there were several three-putt greens.

Manila had little difficulty in taking the three events.

The scores were: A. V. Ednie and A. G. Gibbs (Manila) beat J. W. Harrison and D. Ward Smith (Shanghai) 3 and 1; R. H. Mason and J. Mason (Manila) beat W. H. C. Huggrett and T. M. Terraco (Shanghai) 5 and 4; N. S. Wetherpoon and J. R. McFie (Manila) beat P. H. Prevot and Benson (Shanghai) 4 and 3.

M.C.C. WIN AGAIN.

Beat New South Wales by Four Wickets.

SOME FEEBLE BATTING.

Sydney, Jan. 28.

The M.C.C. beat New South Wales by four wickets but they gave a feeble exhibition of batting on a wicket to which it would have been thought they had become accustomed.

Fifteen thousand people saw to-day's play. Additional rain fell in the morning. W. R. Hammond exploited one particular spot on a tricky wicket and up to lunch had taken four wickets for 37 runs. New South Wales had lost six wickets for 110 runs. Don Bradman was undefeated with 68 to his credit.

The tail-enders of the New South Wales team were demoralised, the innings closing for 123 runs. Don Bradman scored 71 in 120 minutes by characteristic driving and well-placed shots. He hit six fours.

He hit four fours for 28 runs and Hammond six for 43. The M.C.C. lost six wickets before they scored 110 runs needed for victory. Wyatt made three, the Nawab of Patnawali one, M. Leyland 38, W. R. Hammond 24, M. W. Tate 28 not out and P. R. Brown 12 not out.

Chivers captured three wickets for 29 runs.—Reuter.

POPE'S CALL FOR PRAYER

TRUE SCIENCE NOT ENEMY OF FAITH

Rome, Jan. 23. The Pope, in a speech published in the Observatore to-day, instructed all Catholics to offer special prayers in the forthcoming Holy Year for divine help in scientific researches. These, he said, if sincere and complete, can only lead to faith.

"No true science can be an enemy to the faith," he added. "Imperfect impartial science, that which stops short of the light, can mislead. Sincere and complete science, however, which seeks only truth, can but lead to the faith and can render it true homage."

The Pope said that, to learn the real truth, seekers must first understand humbleness of spirit, and for this virtue he recommended prayer.

The speech was delivered yesterday in the Consistory Hall on the occasion of the approval of two miracles which were advanced for the beatification of Sister Vincenza Gerosa, one of the founders of the order of Sisters of Charity. — Reuter.

Mr. J. Owen-Hughes, who was to have left on Home leave on Saturday, has been seriously ill for some days past with influenza. He had a better night last night and is progressing as well as can be expected. His many friends hope that he will soon be restored to his usual good health.

NOTEWORTHY WEDDING

MR. HORACE LO AND MISS GRACE HO TUNG

Two of the best-known and most highly respected families of the Colony were united this afternoon, when Miss Grace Ho Tung, daughter of Sir Robert and Lady Ho Tung, became the bride of Mr. Horace Lo, of the legal firm of Messrs. Lo and Lo, son of Mr. Lo Choung-shu.

Great interest was manifested in the wedding, and there was a large and representative gathering at the reception subsequently held in the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden, at which the health of the newly-wed couple was proposed in a happy speech, by the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary.

The bride, who was given away by her father, presented a charming appearance in a gown of parchment crepe, and on her graceful Grecian lines, with long tulle, making a perfect silhouette. She carried a bouquet of arum lilies.

In attendance on the bride were the Misses Florence Ho Tung, Elizabeth Gilman and Rita Lo. The first-named was attired in a dress of angel-skin lace, with velvet coat of azure blue, whilst the other two wore dresses of azure blue tulle with velvet coats. All carried floral posies.

The bride's mother wore Chinese ceremonial dress.

Dr. K. C. Yeo was best man.

SAILOR CREATES DISTURBANCE

AMERICAN FINED ON THREE COUNTS

A disturbance created by an American seaman in Kowloon last night was described to Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when C. Nelson, of the U. S. S. Summerville, was charged on counts of being drunk and disorderly, damaging a ricksha and damaging Government property.

It was alleged by Sergeant Smith of the Water Police Station, that defendant was drunk near the Star Ferry Wharf at about 11 o'clock last night. He picked a quarrel with a ricksha coolie and damaged the vehicle to the extent of $5. Both parties were taken to the Water Police Station, and in the charge room, defendant continued to behave in a disorderly manner. He tried to assault Sergeant Smith, who was on charge-room duty, and in doing so broke some brass rails.

Defendant pleaded guilty to the charges.

On the first charge his Worship imposed a fine of $10; on the second $20 with $5 compensation to the ricksha coolie; and on the third $20 with $25 compensation to the Government.

In Shanghai, the bride's going-away dress being an ensemble of heavy brown wool gaiters, with touches of canton lace on the bodice, the coat to match having a large ruche of velvet.

CONVICTS' WREATH FOR CHAPLAIN

"FOR ALL OF US HE DID HIS BEST."

The funeral took place recently at Carlsbrook, Isle of Wight, of Captain Joseph Woodhouse, of the Church Army, for 20 years assistant chaplain at Parkhurst convict prison, who died suddenly in his office at the prison.

The floral tributes included a wreath from the prisoners bearing the following inscription: "With respect and affection from the inmates of his Majesty's Prison, Parkhurst."

"For all of us he did his best; 'We hope in Heaven he'll find sweet rest.'"

The Governor acceded to the prisoners' request that they might be allowed to send the wreath. It consisted of one chrysanthemum and eight carnations, and the card was written by one of the prisoners.
